SHOWERS TO RELIEVE DROUGHT

Today

Real Drought Is Here.
Stock Prices Sprout.
They Demand Work,
Czar's Debts, Bad Debts.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

PRESIDENT HOOVER, warned by Secretary Hyde that the excessive drought is a menace to crops and farmers, has given orders that every effort be made to relieve the distress.

CURIOUSLY, THE news of the drought stimulates better Wall Street prices. One man's poison is another man's meat.

IF THE DROUGHT kills grain, there won't be so much wheat, prices must go up.

Prices of stocks depend largely on grain prices.

That reasoning is not comforting to farmers.

If they have a good crop they can't get anything for it. If they haven't any wheat, they could get any price for wheat they haven't got.

IN OHIO, 100 farmers, crops ruined, cows giving no milk for lack of grass, went in a body to demand work at road building.

As there were a hundred of them, the work was furnished.

Those applying individually had been refused.

SOME "BEST MINDS" will say "that seems like Socialism, bullying public officials is intimidation."

But they don't protest when railroads say to the Interstate Commerce Commission, "We are not making enough money, We need higher rates."

They get the higher rates. And when manufacturers are not satisfied with earnings they go to the tariff tinkerers saying, "We are not making enough money, we need higher rates." They get higher rates.

But a farmer or any other man demanding a chance to work, seems a menace. That's democratic government.

STALIN SAYS RUSSIA will not pay the Czar's debts, and there is no reason why Russia should pay them. This ought to be the last country to insist on payment. We are supposed not to believe in czars.

If King George had issued bonds on the United States before we got rid of him, we should not have paid them.

Why expect today's rulers in Russia to pay debts of a man that spent money sending them to Siberia, or having them beaten with the knout?

UNPLEASANT NEWS from China. Nanking dispatches tell of a British woman, wife of a British official, attacked while asleep by a Chinese soldier and expected to die of bayonet wounds.

Shanghai sends stories of torture and other outrages inflicted on women missionaries.

IN FUKIEN province bandits kidnaped a woman missionary, cut off one of her fingers and sent it to the authorities demanding $50,000, threatening to send other fingers if the money was not paid.

DAVID BELASCO obliges Mr. Curtis by picking the "50 greatest actors of all time" and many of them are now living, George M. Cohan, 52; Mary Anderson, 71; Minnie Maddern Fiske, 65; Maude Adams, 58; Julia Marlowe, 64. The ages are supplied by Mr. Belasco, but those that have seen Cohan and the ladies can testify that at least 20 years should be taken from each.

THE FACT is that we have CHARMING actors and actresses but not "GREAT" actors and actresses.

Rachel, born in Switzerland, daughter of a Jewish peddler, possessed genius that could not be extracted from all the American actresses that have ever lived.

WHAT THE GREEK actors with their masks were like, we don't know. But there must have been considerable genius in the succession of actors that caused one of Euripides' tragedies to run in Athens for 500 years.

THERE IS A NEW gold rush in Australia, following the discovery of a nugget weighing 30 ounces.

On foot, in new and second-hand American automobiles, by airplane, and on camels and horses, the gold seekers rush to "peg out their claims." Many gold hunters will use up enough energy to make a satisfactory success in ordinary life.

BUT GOLD is a stimulant to effort, ordinary work is not. Certain words appeal to all human beings powerfully, because they go far back in our history, for instance death, fear, snake, rat, gold, torture.

You can suggest others.

JEAN TASSERAND, to prove that he loved a girl, wrote her a farewell note, jumped to his death from an airplane, his broken body landing in the garden of his mother's home.

Fools will make a hero of him. He would have been more like a hero had he taken care of his mother and lived to prove that he appreciated her, which is every man's first duty.

PILOT AIMS AT 14-HR. RECORD

Reaches St. Louis After Hop From New York—Expects To Set New Speed Mark

BULLETIN.

WICHITA, Kan., Aug. 6.—(AP.)—Capt. Frank Hawks refueled here today on his westward dash across the continent for a New York-to-Los Angeles flight record and took off at 11:45 a. m. for Albuquerque, N. M., his next refueling stop.

The flier arrived here at 11:33 a. m. from St. Louis, making the trip in 2 hours and 3 minutes.

International News Service.

LAMBERT-ST. LOUIS FIELD, Aug. 6.—Capt. Frank Hawks pointed the nose of his Travelair mystery plane westward at 9:29 a. m. and continued his transcontinental flight in which he is seeking to set a new record today.

Capt. Hawks brought his ship to earth here from Columbus at 9:11, waiting 18 minutes for his plane to be serviced.

The hop from Columbus required two hours and seven minutes, making the entire time for the trip which he began this morning from Curtiss Field, New York, five hours and 10 minutes.

Capt. Hawks, in a brief interview, estimated his average speed at 180 miles an hour. He said he hoped to maintain his average, which he expected would enable him to shatter the existing transcontinental record of 18 hours and 45 minutes. He expects to complete the trip in about 14 hours.

During his brief stay, Capt. Hawks penned a brief note of encouragement to Dale "Red" Jackson and Forrest O'Brine, former holders of the world endurance flight record, who are out gunning for a new world mark in their ship "Greater St. Louis."

KAUFFMANN RULING HIT

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

Pittsburgh golfers today were indignant over the action of officials of the public links section of the United States Golf Association in disqualifying Carl P. Kauffmann, Schenley Park star, for an unintentional technical error in the first round of the qualifying test in the National public links championship tournament at Jacksonville, Fla., yesterday. Throughout local circles, golfers resented the drastic action which eliminated the champion, who had won the crown three consecutive years.

In Jacksonville, Kauffmann, while accepting the bad break with as much grace as possible under the conditions, said it probably meant the end of his campaigning for public links honors.

Apparently he killed his family, then took his own life. Benavides had been charged with the slaying of Malaquias Salazar in a quarrel over money.

Pennsylvania Investigation Prompts Idea—Bonitz Says Davis Asked No Funds

By E. P. O'BRIEN,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Investigation of the Pennsylvania primary election by the Senate Campaign Funds Committee was at an end today with these developments:

1—A constitutional amendment, giving Congress the power to regulate primary elections in the states, will be introduced next fall, Senator Gerald P. Nye, chairman, announced.

2—Walter A. Bonitz, Pittsburgh brick manufacturer, who gave $36,750 to the Davis-Brown campaign, told the committee yesterday that in governmental reform "you can accomplish more by boring from within than you can in 30 years of independent movements."

3—C. C. McGovern, County Commissioner, asserted that stealing the election was stopped by 25 ex-service men, after the returns had been filed in the Commissioners' office, and that the recount board is a joke.

4—Attorney Ralph H. Frank testified: "The election machinery of Allegheny County was paralyzed on election day by the ruling of Judge Macfarlane not to hear anything but criminal charges in the election."

Bonitz was the star witness and his answer to the first question caused a decided stir in the hearing.

Asked if he had been approached since the campaign for further contributions he said that he had "it a casual sort of a way."

HAS HIS OWN REASONS

Senator Gerald P. Nye, chairman of the investigating committee, asked what his answer was, and Bonitz replied:

"I said, 'my God, don't you think I have been taken for enough.'"

Asked whether he expected to gain anything by his contribution, Bonitz told Nye:

"I have my own reasons for being in politics. There are a

FORECASTER SEES BREAK IN HEAT WAVE

Milk Price to Be Raised; State Acts to Aid Towns Hit by Water Shortage

Possibilities for temporary relief from the drought and heat gripping the district were seen today by Forecaster William Brotzman as prospects for rain grew brighter.

Brotzman said that while there would be local showers tonight and tomorrow, there would be little change in temperature.

Last night and early today witnessed a rainfall here of a hundredth of an inch, Brotzman said, while in parts of Ohio the rainfall reached the half-inch mark.

DROUGHT REMAINS

In spite of the promise of rain, however, it was pointed out that there is little immediate hope for routing the prolonged drought.

The State Health Department has begun emergency measures to bring drinking water to communities suffering from serious shortage.

An increase of 1 cent a quart in the price of milk beginning August 16, was announced as a result of the Women dog race devotees, who apparently had been awed by the presence of county detectives at Guyasuta Kennel Club track on the Freeport road, joined the ringside bettors last night and found the detectives made no effort to interfere with their "fun."

Two, three, five, ten and twenty-dollar bets were placed on each race at the ringside last night with little effort at concealment, while obliging detectives, with instructions to arrest and jail all gamblers, spent much of their time back under the grandstand.

3 Firemen Held in New Attack

Three city firemen were arrested for the second time in 24 hours when they are alleged to have attacked Lawrence Goodman, Hill storekeeper, as he left Center Avenue Police Station today after testifying against them.

The three, Capt. Paddy Carroll, Charles Geis and Albert Zimmerman, all of No. 2 Engine Company, Penn avenue and Fourteenth street, beat Goodman at Center avenue and Dinwiddie street, the merchant reported, as he ran back into the station house.

Inspector Albert Beebe ordered the firemen arrested. They were locked up charged with disorderly conduct.

Goodman, who runs a fruit and fish store at 2136 Wylie avenue, had testified that the three firemen, intoxicated, entered his place yesterday, used abusive language and finally wrecked his stands.

Goodman had no corroborative witnesses. Magistrate Leo Rothenberg advised him to make an information against the firemen before an alderman and have his witnesses present. He discharged the defendants. All have been suspended pending a hearing before the firemen's trial board Tuesday.

Northcliffe Gives Girl Flier $50,000

LONDON, Aug. 6.—(AP.)—Amy Johnson, Britain's London-to-Australia flying heroine, made a triumphal progress in sunshine and rain squalls through the streets of London today. She went to a hotel where she received a check for approximately $50,000 from the London Daily Mail, which, maintaining the traditions of Lord Northcliffe for fostering aviation, rewarded her for her success on the Australian hop.

Priest Who Married Hoovers Dies at 66

SAN JOSE, Cal., Aug. 6.—(AP.)—Monsignor Ramon M. Mestres, 66, who performed the marriage ceremony for President and Mrs. Hoover in 1899, died here last night after a prolonged illness. He had been pastor of the noted Carmel Mission for 37 years.

Mrs. Hoover, then Lou Henry, a teacher in the Monterey schools, was a close friend of Father Mestres.

HUNCH NUMBER JOLTS RACKET

Although a few operators of big clearing house lotteries in the city are reported to have paid the winners of yesterday's number, a majority of those who held 805 found themselves "out of luck," those who know say. This favorite number, 805, figured from the eighth month and fifth day, hit yesterday and played havoc with clearing house operations.

Reports are to the effect several hundred thousand dollars changed hands, that many small operators went out of business without attempting to pay off, and that one big lottery on the North Side quit business without paying the winners.

Another report stated one of the North Side headquarters announced it would pay 20 per cent of the winnings.

A South Side operator, with headquarters in South Eighteenth street, with 28 obligations to be met, closed his business and disappeared much to the chagrin of nearly a dozen women who throughout the day expressed their

SEEK 2 IN MEAT PLANT FIRE

East End police today were seeking two men who were seen fleeing from the slaughter house of the East Liberty Home Dressed Meat Company, 6830 Upland street, a few minutes before it was discovered afire this morning.

U. S. to Hold Auto Trade Abroad, Coolidge Thinks

PLYMOUTH, Vt., Aug. 6.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Because in the past year there has been a trade recession that has been felt all over the world, most nations are making great efforts, often in the form of high protection and of practical exclusion of foreign goods, to recoup the losses which they have felt.

Calvin Coolidge.

The United States has not gone that far, but the pressure from both business men and wage earners for measures that will insure to them the opportunity to produce the entire supply for the domestic market has become very insistent. It is the same action abroad which at present is converging upon the automobile trade.

For years almost all the automobiles exported in the entire world came from this country. It was inevitable that other nations should try desperately at least to keep more of their home markets for their home productions. Our cars were bound to face that problem sooner or later. Nothing we could do or refrain from doing would prevent it.

Temporarily, our manufacturers will encounter some difficulties. But, if they act with discretion and make proper contacts, the excellence and low cost of our cars will continue to commend them to foreign purchasers. We are far in the lead in this field.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

U. S. TO KEEP UP BARS UNTIL RUSS ACKNOWLEDGE DEBTS

SOVIET FIRM IN REFUSAL TO PAY

Moscow Organ Hints High Interest Rate to Partly Cover American Losses

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The United States will continue to withhold recognition of Soviet Russia until that country acknowledges all of its financial obligation to this country, it has been learned at the State Department.

This followed foreign press reports that Peter Bogdanov, chief of the Amtorg Trading Company official commercial agency of the Soviet in the United States, had been authorized to open negotiations with the State Department.

It was specifically stated the policy established by former Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes, in which he held that the United States would not treat with Russia until that country agrees to discharge its debt to the United States, is still the policy of this government.

SOVIET STANDS FIRM

MOSCOW, Aug. 6.—(Universal)—The Soviet government informed the world again today that it will continue forever to repudiate foreign debts incurred by the Czarist regime.

The Soviet, according to an inspired editorial in Izvestia, official government organ, will not pay Czarist debts as the price of commercial credits in the United States, although the country might be willing to pay higher interest on loans as part compensation for American losses in Russia.

President Hoover, said Izvestia, was guided by the interests of American capitalists when he removed the pulpwood embargo, although "business men find nothing inconsistent about supporting trade with the Soviet and supporting the Pope in his crusade against the Soviet government."

shortage caused by the drought.

The official high temperature yesterday was 91 degrees.

Shortage of Water Brings State Aid

The health department is directing its first efforts to relieve the water shortage at Bentleyville, Harmarville, Haysville, Uniontown, Waynesburg, Atwells and Leechburg. Emergency supplies are being tapped to these communities.

The milk price increase was decided upon at a meeting of farmers, dealers and consumers yesterday. The increase will go to the farmers to help meet the depressing economic situation in country districts supplying this city with milk, it was announced.

DOUBTS SHEEP SACRIFICE

Replying to reports that farmers who have been hard hit by the drought are selling their sheep for 25 cents a head, L. N. Woodruff, market reporter for the Bureau of Agricultural Economics in the United States Department of Agriculture here, said:

"So far I have been unable to get verification of these reports, which dealt for the most part with farmers in outlying districts.

"The rumors are current, but we place no credence in them. I have not found any farmer who has either bought or sold sheep at a price any way near the one reported."

Prisoners Fighting Fires Near Workhouse

Supt. Robert Braun, of the County Workhouse, said that he had been forced to use 200 prisoners to fight brush fires on property adjoining the prison grounds.

To protect the workhouse farm, prisoners have turned up earth surrounding the place, and are on guard continuously against any blaze that might destroy the crops.

Braun declared that although the men worked after dark in beating out the brush fires, none attempted to escape.

City fire companies and volunteers in the outlying districts continued to answer hundreds of alarms yesterday, fighting brush fires which destroyed buildings, property and crops. Six boys who are charged with having set fire to a section of the Garden Plan near Munhall Sunday, were fined $7 each when arraigned before Justice of the Peace E. M. Cox, of Munhall, last night. Because of their youth the Sun-Telegraph will not publish their names.

Store Near Wildwood Destroyed by Flames

A long trench was dug by scores of volunteer firemen to check a blaze that spread over a large territory near Wildwood yesterday. The flames destroyed a store. Another farmhouse threatened by the flames was saved by the fire fighters. The flames finally were extinguished by volunteers who used a road scraper. Firemen from Glenshaw, Allison Park, Undercliff and Hampton township fought the flames. Etna and Sharpsburg, where calls for assistance were made, were unable to answer, being busy fighting fires in their own neighborhoods. Water soaked bags also were used in fighting fire.

Buildings on the camp meeting grounds, Natrona Heights, were threatened late yesterday. Flames also threatened homes in the vicinity of Sycamore street. Natrona and Natrona Heights companies extinguished the fires. Tarentum firemen were forced to lay 1,200 feet of hose before conquering a stubborn blaze in Frazier Township.

6,500 Chickens Saved Near East Pittsburgh

Chicken coops containing 6,500 chickens were endangered last night by the brush fire which swept the poultry farm of W. F. McClelland, Dixon avenue, Oak Hill. Firemen from East Pittsburgh, East McKeesport and Wilmerding battled several hours before bringing the flames under control. Wilmerding firemen answered three calls within a few hours to fight fires on a hillside overlooking the Lincoln highway.

A gasoline service station was threatened by the fire which burned along the Clairton-Elizabeth road during the night. Clairton and Elizabeth firemen extinguished three fires in this district. Homeville firemen from Mifflin township used 80 sections of hose to reach a fire on Doerr's terrace last night.

Brush fires also were reported in Oakmont, North Braddock, Greentree, East Carnegie, Etna, Millvale, Versailles, Sharpsburg, Blawnox, Crafton and Ingram. Several acres of ground were ravaged by the flames that spread over McDonald Heights, Aliquippa. Firemen worked all night to conquer the blaze.

DROUGHT 'ALARMING'

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 6.—(AP.)—The weekly weather and crop report for Pennsylvania issued today by the United States Weather Bureau in Philadelphia, says:

BRITISH GIRD FOR CLASH IN CHINA

Ready to March Instantly for Hankow; Demand Made For Missionaries' Release

By DON KING
Universal Service.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 6.—British troops are being mobilized here today, with orders to be ready to embark at a moment's notice for Hankow, important railway center between Peking and Changsha, that is menaced by the red army which today was reported moving northward from Changsha.

Urgent representations were made by the British Government today to the Chinese authorities, in an attempt to effect the immediate release of Miss E. J. Harrington and Miss Edith Nettleton, British missionaries held by Communists for ransom in Hunan Province.

British Minister Lampson, stationed at Peiping, acting on instructions, informed the Chinese Government at Nanking that if the threats of further outrages against the captured women are carried out, the result will be a disastrous reaction of public opinion, disgracing the Chinese people and government throughout the world.

REPORT FINGER SEVERED

The communication was sent following reports that the brigands had severed a finger from Miss Nettleton's hand and dispatched it to the British authorities, with a demand for $50,000 ransom.

The 3,000 foreign Nationals in Hankow, including 302 Americans, are awaiting the orders of consuls there to board the 11 foreign gunboats in the Yangtze River for protection, while details of marines and sailors have been rushed to protect the foreign quarter.

Hankow merchants are refusing to rely on the Nanking government's promises of protection, and have organized a volunteer defensive force of 1,500, fearing the Nationalist troops, as at Changsha, will be of little or no use.

TELLS HARROWING TALES

Refugees are streaming into Hankow from Changsha with harrowing tales of the Red terror there. Tension in Hankow, because of this and the fact Communist bands are closing about the city from the west and south, still is great, although the Red armies were reported driven out of the railway zone along the Siang River.

Nationalist forces today were reported entering Changsha, which has been terrorized by Reds for a fortnight, but the dispatches were unconfirmed, and conflicted with reports that the Communists were holding the city, capital of Hunan Province, despite Nationalist bombardment.

Mrs. A. R. J. Hearne, wife of a British engineer, was bayonetted by a Chinese Communist at Puchen, in the Red zone, and it is feared she will not recover.

Japanese dispatches today reported that the Communists had executed 2,000 Chinese after capturing Changsha. In addition, 4,000 Chinese are missing. These are believed either to have been murdered or kidnaped.

WOMEN BET ON DOG RACES

ball fans, was the bookie who seemed to do the most business.

The betting in the small crowd was relatively light on the first race. It brightened up on the second, and became almost enthusiastic when by the third race women fans began to back with their money their judgment of the ability of certain greyhounds to run, by slipping bills of various denominations to the bookies.

OPEN BETTING

County detectives stood near, in one instance within seven feet, of what most folk would classify as open betting. One bookie in particular stood with a scratch pad, upon which he recorded bets.

In one particular instance a player placed:

"Fifteen on No. 3 in the fourth race, pal."

He gave the bookie the amount, one $10 bill and a five. The bookie recorded the amount and gave the player a receipt.

KNEW NO. 1 COULDN'T WIN

Another bookie stood behind an observer while a race was going on and said:

"No. 1 can't win. I've got business on him."

At that time "No. 1" was leading the field, but at the turn was passed by another dog, who took the race.

This same bookie walked over to another bookie, who was evidently working for him, and instructed him to take no more bets on a certain dog until he (the bookie) returned. He left the track and returned within a few minutes. Betting opened again on the dog.

And after all of this four county detectives on duty at the tracks last night—Lawrence Kline, John Carmichael, Harry Barker and Philip Goldberg—reported "no open gambling, no hawking of bets, no passing of money openly, no evidence of gambling upon which a prosecution could be based."

Bets made in a conversation between two persons, the detectives assert, do not constitute open gambling and prosecution of such cases would not hold in court.

opinions of him outside the closed doors.

One of the largest in that district is said to have his peace of mind burdened with $90,000 worth of obligations. He is said to have employed the installment plan in paying off the large winners. He also issued several promissory notes.

PROFITS HIT HARD

The lucky number yesterday was a great favorite among persons who "play the numbers." As a result of its appearing, the profits of the operators were hard hit. One big pool in the East End is said to have announced that hereafter it will reduce its awards to winners.

Possession of a basket filled with slips turned in by "numbers writers" cost Philip Goldberg, 2913 Shady avenue, $100 when he was arraigned today before Magistrate Thomas Jones in Morals Court on a charge of operating a lottery at 717 Lyceum Building. Seven other men arrested in the raid yesterday were discharged for lack of evidence.

FINED ON EVIDENCE

Goldberg maintained he had nothing to do with the lottery, but after detectives produced the basket filled with numbers writers' slips, Jones fined him.

Precinct Detective James Noon reported to Magistrate W. J. Soost today that 6400 Frankstown avenue, named yesterday by Nicklos Amen, of 7405 Hermitage street, as a lottery headquarters, is a gasoline station. Amen, who had been arrested charged with being a numbers writer, was fined $50 at today's hearing.

East M'Keesport Firemen Open Fair

Vermin that infest the Central Police Station building met their Pied Piper today in the person of J. Albert O'Dell, professional exterminator of pests.

O'Dell and an assistant bore down on the vermin armed with solutions of bichloride of mercury and alcohol and electric squirt guns. Work began in the detectives' headquarters on the fourth floor. From this floor the exterminator will work down to the cell blocks. In two weeks every little bug will have left the building, O'Dell says.

CHARGE LAWYER WITH MURDER

AMARILLO, Tex., Aug. 6.—(AP.)—A charge of murder was filed here today against A. D. Payne, Amarillo attorney, in connection with the death of his wife, who was killed June 27, when an infernal machine wrecked the family automobile.

Payne was arrested as the result of an investigation into the woman's death. She was killed June 27 and her nine-year-old son maimed as she was driving the car to town from the Payne home.

Mayor Ernest O. Thompson, of Amarillo, is assisting the district attorney, who said a statement had been obtained from Mrs. Verona Thompson, Payne's former secretary, asserting Payne had made violent love to her.

BILLION DOLLAR DROUGHT LOSS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—(INS.)—While President Hoover and Cabinet members were considering emergency relief measures for the drought-stricken areas of the nation, fresh reports of enormous damage—estimated at possibly a billion dollars or more—were announced by the United States Weather Bureau.

The agricultural meteorology section of the bureau reported that during the week ended yesterday, the drought not only was intensified in the eastern and central sections but actually extended its scope.

Forecasters held out slim hope for a decisive breakup of the drought, although scattered thundershowers in various sections will afford temporary relief and at least check the heat wave.

RUM NO BASIS FOR DEPORTING

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—(Universal.)—Labor Department officials have turned "thumbs down" on Prohibition Director Woodcock's plan to deport alien bootleggers and higher-ups in the liquor racket.

Courts have held that violation of the Volstead act is not a crime involving moral turpitude.

It is not a base offense against society, such as murder, burglary, or a long list of other crimes, the courts have held when immigration authorities tried to oust alien bootleggers, it was pointed out.

While there have been no test cases under the famous Jones "5-and-10" law, Labor Department officials said it would be useless to appeal to the courts for deportation authority under that act.

LILA LEE LOSES BOY IN DIVORCE

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 6.—(AP.)—The seven-year marital venture of James Kirkwood, actor and film director, and Lila Lee, stage and screen actress, was at an end today.

Charging his wife had deserted him, Kirkwood won a divorce decree and the custody of their six-year-old child, James, Jr.

A contract approved by the court yesterday denied the mother any right of "care, control, custody or jurisdiction over the rearing, educating or religious training of the child."

The couple was married July 26, 1923, and parted July 15, 1928.

MERGER TERMS AGAIN SCORED

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 6.—(AP.)—Hassell Tippit, Cleveland member of the Ernst & Ernst auditing firm, presented a new batch of figures in Common Pleas Court today to support the contention of the Cyrus S. Eaton interests that Youngstown Sheet and Tube stockholders were not adequately compensated by the terms of the merger with Bethlehem.

Tippit offered a five-year average of the respective earnings of the two steel companies.

From 1924 to 1928 the average of adjusted earnings per share was $9.05 for Sheet and Tube and $1.82 for Bethlehem, the auditor said. On that basis the ratio of exchange in the merger terms should have been 4.97 shares of Bethlehem common for each share of Sheet and Tube, he testified.

The actual ratio of exchange, as ratified by Sheet and Tube directors and by the proxy-embattled stockholders' meeting of April 8, was 1.333 shares of Bethlehem for one of Youngstown.

JAIL SUSPECT IN HOLDUP

An alleged member of a bandit gang was captured early today in Overbrook by a Mt. Lebanon policeman after a holdup of a man in Greenfield and a gasoline theft in Soho.

The prisoner, Paul Reed, 19, Negro, of 218 Devilliers street, is being held in Overbrook Police Station. Three others escaped.

Frank Miller, of 1732 Brighton road, told police he was held up and robbed of $2 by three Negroes and a white man in an auto at Second and Greenfield avenues this morning.

Later, an attendant of a Boulevard of the Allies service station reported three Negroes and a white man had driven off without paying for a full supply of gasoline and oil he had sold them.

In Mt. Lebanon, Motorcycle Patrolman James Potts questioned the four when they violated a traffic regulation. They sped off, and the officer pursued. The machine was wrecked when it hit a barrier. Reed was arrested, but his companions escaped.

Grace's Son Clerk Here To Learn Steel Trade

With ambitions to learn the steel industry from the bottom up, Charles Brown Grace, son of Eugene G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, has taken a position as a clerk in the plant of the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation here, it was learned today.

The younger Grace recently graduated from Princeton. He desires to become a salesman. He has quietly gone about his duties since accepting the position a few weeks ago, and only a few fellow workers in the mill knew him as the son of President Grace.

Young Grace has been living at 6201 Fifth avenue with friends. He admitted his identity when interviewed there last night.

Hoover Will Try His Luck At Landing Sword Fish

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—(Universal)—President Hoover probably will go angling for swordfish off Montauk Point, L. I., instead of for trout in the mountain streams of the National Parks in the West, it has been indicated at the White House.

The President feels he can not leave Washington for a prolonged vacation until the end of the month. The national parks close Labor Day, which this years falls on September 1, so he would not have time to make his contemplated tour.

In the meantime he has sent his secretary, Lawrence Richey, his constant fishing companion, to Long Island Sound, from which point he has received reports that 200-pound swordfish are a common catch. This breed is a cousin of the sailfish, which attracted him to Florida last February. Richey says they are plentiful all along the sound and up the coast from New London, Conn.

Jeremiah Milbank, wealthy New Yorker, who put his houseboat, the Saunterer, at the disposal of the President when he went fishing in Florida, now has placed his cruiser, the Gem, at the President's service and, it is understood, Mr. Hoover will board it at Washington, where it is anchored, and go on it to the fishing grounds.

CANADA-BRITAIN AIR LINE URGED

OTTAWA, Aug. 6.—(AP.)—The proposal that Canada and England beat the United States and Germany into the field of commercial trans-Atlantic airship service has been made by Sir Dennistoun Burney, designer of the dirigible R-100.

He outlined his proposal in an address before Viscount Willingdon, the governor general; Premier Mackenzie King, R. B. Bennett, premier-elect, and prominent Canadian businessmen.

He asked that a committee be appointed at once to determine what governmental and financial support would be available in Canada, so he could submit a definite plan when he returns to England.

He said that if Canadian cooperation were forthcoming, service between Canada and England could be installed before the line being organized by Dr. Hugo Eckener, for regular commercial flights between Germany and the United States, is placed in operation.

SIR HUBERT AIRPORT, Montreal, Que., Aug. 6.—(AP.)—Repairs to the stabilizing fin of the R-100 neared completion today and plans were under way for a short cruise to test the dirigible's airworthiness before she returns to England.

The beacon's bright glow will signify to the watchers that the event has taken place.

Arrival of the child, which may be an heir presumptive to the British throne, will set in motion elaborate channels of information. Home Secretary J. R. M'DONALD ENDS PERJURY TALE

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 6.—(AP.)—John MacDonald, worn and haggard, made his final appearance before the State Supreme Court yesterday preparatory to leaving for Baltimore, from whence he came to repudiate 12-year-old testimony which helped send Warren K. Billings and Thomas J. Mooney to prison for life as bombers of the July, 1916, Preparedness Day parade here.

MacDonald's closing testimony followed announcement that Billings, whose plea for a pardon recommendation the Supreme Court Justices are considering, will be brought from his Folsom prison cell to testify "at the proper time."

It was indicated Billings' presence would not be required until next week.

The final questioning of MacDonald brought new, conflicting admissions from the witness, whose earlier testimony had plunged the hearing deeper into a web of contradictions. MacDonald was waved off the stand by Associate Justice Preston after admitting he had sought part of the reward offered for the bombers. He previously had denied this.

SHORTS BATHER GIVEN $5 FINE

Christy Cleary, 32, of Muriel street, elusive swimmer, who cooled off in the Monongahela river in an abbreviated bathing costume against police protests yesterday, was fined $5 today in South Side Police Court on a disorderly conduct charge.

It is alleged he went swimming in the river clad only in a pair of "shorts." Police received complaints and Traffic Officer Frank Crummer and Patrolman George Reiss were directed to stop him.

Cleary is said to have amused himself by swimming near the bank and refusing to obey police.

Finally the officers obtained a skiff and with about 300 spectators enjoying their work, they finally dragged the swimmer into the boat. He promptly dived into the water again. The second time they held on to him and lodged him in the police station.

PITTSBURGH BOY MAY GO FREE

Has Fine Record Here; Insists Policeman Who Was Slain Fired First

By LAWRENCE DUMOND.
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Thomas Healy, Pittsburgh youth, today was ordered held without bail for arraignment in West Side Court tomorrow, and extradition to Brookline, Mass., in connection with the murder of a patrolman there.

But because Healy did not carry a gun and did not know that his companion carried one, and because of his frankness, he has a good chance to win freedom or a light sentence, International News Service was informed.

Healy said:

"This is the first time I was ever in trouble."

He told a story of what happened Sunday night, when Patrolman Joseph P. O'Brien, of Brookline, was shot and killed while investigating the suspicious actions of Healy and his companion, Paul Hurley. He admitted they were planning to stage a hold-up.

POLICEMAN FIRES

He testified:

"We went out to Brookline and pulled up in front of a drug store, and were walking up and down in front. A patrolman got suspicious and walked over to the automobile and asked Hurley what we were doing. An argument started, and the patrolman pulled a gun and started firing. Hurley fired, too, and there were about seven shots fired in all."

Healy said in court that his vacation from his clerking job in Pittsburgh expired Monday, and added:

"I guess I've lost that job, though."

WELL LIKED HERE

Thomas Healy, 19, of 518 Armandale street, North Side, held by New York authorities in connection with a murder in Brookline, Mass., has no police record in Pittsburgh, local authorities today announced. Instead, city detectives said, the boy has an extremely fine record and friends here were shocked at his arrest.

Healy, a former student in the preparatory school at Duquesne University, was employed in a downtown dental laboratory. He had gone on his vacation, a week ago, making the trip to Boston to visit his friend, Hurley. He arrived there Friday and discovered Hurley was without employment. The boys were classmates at a boarding school in North East, Pa.

half a dozen politicians in Pittsburgh who know what I have in mind. My idea of politics is boring from within, not boring from without."

KNOWS DAVIS

Asked if he knew any of the candidates personally Bonitz testified he met Secretary of Labor James J. Davis about four years ago, casually, but got to know him better during the past year.

Bonitz continued:

"Secretary Davis never personally solicited me for any funds, and he perhaps didn't know of my efforts for him."

He said his principal business is fire brick and that his gross sales for six years of paving brick to municipalities totaled only $375,000.

RECALLS HEARINGS

Asked if his concern does not practically enjoy a monopoly of the municipal brick business, he said:

"The hearings at Harrisburg resulted in an absolute acquittal of me. It was all tommyrot anyhow. The charge was all bull. An element in Pittsburgh politics is simply using this without any basis for some reasons of their own. I know Allegheny County office-holders. Some of them are good and some not so good. You know what I mean, Senator. And I want you to know that I don't mean any disrespect to the committee by using the word bull. You know what I mean, Senator."

The Senator apparently did or at least had developed all that he wished to from the vociferous witness, for he only asked him one more question, if he had contributed to any other campaigns.

PREVIOUS GIFTS SMALLER

Bonitz said that he had, but not as heavily, in 1927, 1928 and 1929. There were no more questions and he was excused. His contribution to the last primary was made in two $5,000 checks to Dr. F. H. Frederick, treasurer of the Republican organization on April 29; $70,000 on May 13 and $15,000 to W. W. Blakeley of the regular Republican organization of Western Pennsylvania and $1,750 to Blakeley on May 20.

The next witness was State Senator James J. Coyne, to whom Nye remarked:

"We anticipated information from you in a general way on the conduct of the election. If you have anything to add to the testimony of the other witnesses we will be glad to hear it."

WITNESS EXCUSED

Coyne replied:

"I haven't anything to tell. I have paid little attention to matters that have come up since election and have nothing to add to what Commissioner McGovern and Attorney Frank have said."

He was then excused and the hearings recessed until further call of the chairman.

County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, when called to the stand, said he would like to make a few remarks and declared:

"There is no need to establish Allegheny County's reputation for fraudulent elections, that was done by the Reed and Waterman committees. The primary of May 20 was better than previous ones, due to the knowledge that the Senate was watching it closely. For a good many years reformers and disappointed candidates have been trying to curb fraud. They never accomplish much.

DECLARES CHEATS BALKED

"This year we tried a new scheme and got away with it. It was a preventive policy and I was on the inside this time instead of the outside. Elections heretofore have been held on Wednesday and Thursday instead of Tuesday. The semi-official returns have heretofore been placed in the hands of election thieves who could change the result of any election in one night. With 25 ex-service men I stopped the night work that would have been done.

"The Pennsylvania Elections Association and the so-called recount board have developed into rackets. The elections association as a matter of fact is now a part of the organization and is an assistance rather than a hindrance to cheating. The recount board is a joke. It is costing $400 a box to count them and is simply an imposition on the taxpayers.

ASKED BOXES IMPOUNDED

McGovern said that before the May primary election he went to the new district attorney and asked him to impound ballot boxes in districts that have been known to be bad for years. District Attorney Andrew T. Park's answer to his request, McGovern said, was that he did not want, to pre-judge the election boards and he refused to co-operate in the suggestion.

Harold W. Bennett, member of the recount board, was the next witness. He testified 18 boxes have been completely recounted and the rest of the 63 brought in for recount will be finished by August 15.

Asked about the missing list from the Second district, Sixth Ward, which was stolen from the ballot box after it was turned over to the recount board, Bennett said he detected the loss and reported it to Judge James R. Macfarlane, but that no trace of it has ever been found.

UPHOLDS M'GOVERN

Bennett said:

"Commissioner McGovern's suggestion that boxes be brought in as soon as the count is completed is a good one. There are wards where they don't count the votes, they weigh them. There are some districts where the boxes should be brought into the sheriff's office and the board made to count them there."

Attorney Ralph H. Frank was before the committee longer than any other witness. He detailed at great length the difficulties encountered by Pinchot supporters during and after the election. He said:

"The election machinery of Allegheny County was paralyzed on election day by the ruling of Judge Macfarlane not to hear anything but criminal charges in the election."

TELLS OF EXPULSION

He detailed the trouble in the Second district, Sixth Ward, which resulted in the taking of the 20 boxes there to the Penn Avenue police station, and the subsequent guarding of the boxes there by himself and the forcible expulsion of other guards.

The conduct of the recount board appointed and supervised by Judge Macfarlane has been most extraordinary, Frank testified, and he told at great length of the erection of the chair barricade in the recount room and the exclusion of attorneys from checking the recount.

Asked if he had no recourse through appeal to the elected officials, Frank said Judge Macfarlane had set down a code of operation for previous recount boards and a new one for the present board, so that he felt it would have been useless to ask him to change the rules. Senator Nye suggested Frank file a brief on other matters that he has to bring before the committee, which will be printed in the Record.

ANTI-DRY CALLED

Randolph W. Childs, Mellon-Phillips campaign manager, testified that he is against federal legislation to supervise primary elections because he feels that the existing machinery, if operated, should be sufficient to handle state elections. He said:

"Although I voted for Senator Pepper, I feel that the Senate disenfranchised Pennsylvania when it barred Mr. Vare. After all, he was picked by the voters of Pennsylvania to represent them. I am opposed to further extending of federal power in elections."

William R. Douglass, William S. Vare's secretary and active in the Brown-Davis campaign, testified briefly that he has no knowledge of any concealed budgets in the election.

PRACTICES DESCRIBED

Dean Hoffman, editor of two Harrisburg newspapers, gave a detailed history of fraud and intimidation of voters in Dauphin County. His testimony was elaborated upon by J. Kress Pannell, Harrisburg attorney, who told of specific instances of intimidation and fraud in the 1928 and 1930 primaries.

He told of cases where voters were recorded as voting who were dead months before election day, of railroaders who went out on their runs the day before election and did not get back until the day after, but were recorded as voting, and of bedridden persons, checked in at the polls.

He said votes were registered from vacant lots, empty houses and junk yards.

VOTERS IN JAIL

Several persons marked as having voted were in jail on election day, he said. A dozen investigators who were checking up on recorded votes were intimidated by police and forced to abandon their work in Steelton, he declared.

None of the witnesses called was subjected to any grilling by Senator Nye. At time he would put questions but the procedure was for the witnesses to be called and asked to make their statements for the record. Except in the case of Bonitz, the hearing was perfunctory and what its objective is was not disclosed.

After the adjournment Senator Nye said he does not expect to go into a further hearing until after the November general election. He will leave tomorrow afternoon on a Canadian fishing trip.

MARION DAVIES PICTURE HELD STYLE GUIDE

New Fashions Shown in Paris Follow Lines of Gowns in 'Nineties Film of Star

By BARON GEORGE WRANGEL.
Universal Service Special Cable.

PARIS, Aug. 6.—It must be that Miss Marion Davies, who registered such a hit in "The Floradora Girl," has been taken as next year's model by Parisian style experts. The 1931 styles, like the picture, bring back the 'nineties, and are on exhibition for the first time.

All of the famous French dressmakers such as Patou, Lucien le Long and the others, are showing leg-o'-mutton sleeves and barrel muffs, and the abbreviated fur caps, and the annual style shows which began today had an air of the historical pageant.

Judging from the fashion parades, milady of 1931, like the dame of President McKinley's time, will be obliged to gather up her skirts, because many of the new models have trains that take quite a bit of maneuvering.

Among the most talked-of models is one by Patou, a startling peek-a-boo frock, with a daring open-front bodice, joined at the neck and waist with bottle-green crepe. Redfern is specializing in evening gowns held up by gold or silver straps, crossing at the back and attached to the shoulders.

Democrats Finish Washington Tour

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 6.—Completing their tour of Washington County, the Democratic candidates, Sedgwick Kistler, for United States senator; John M. Hemphill, for governor, and Guy K. Bard, for lieutenant governor, visited the river towns in the eastern end of the county yesterday.

Guided by Dr. J. K. Smith, of Charleroi, a state committeeman, they went to Monongahela, Charleroi and Donora and in the evening addressed a rally of Greene County Democrats in Waynesburg.

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Aug. 6.—Three new teachers have been added to the staff of Waynesburg public schools for the coming year. They are Sara Jenkins, of Woodlawn, high school librarian; Lloyd Maston, Mapletown, a high school instructor, and Elisabeth Gordon, Waynesburg, a new grade school instructor.

Connellsville Sees Recovery from Bank Crashes

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 6.—Believing better days are ahead despite reversals as a result of three bank failures within a month, directors of the Board of Trade today determined to continue to function and J. D. Beltz, president, declared Connellsville refused to be beaten, declaring:

"There will be a difference here in five years. We will have a more wholesome Connellsville, with better stores and better business."

None of the city's score of diversified industries is idle.

Master Mysteries

By ARTHUR HOERL

'Falling Star'

MATILDA CHRISTINE — "TWICE CAME A YOUNG MAN WORTH MAKING FIGHTS WITH MISS GLADDEN UND ONCE MR SIBLEY'S WIFE COME HERE ALONE"

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Irma Gladden, famous film star, is found murdered in her own car which is parked on the grounds of her Beverly Hills home. The star's boudoir is completely ransacked. Robin Dale learns that Irma Gladden, recently divorced for a third time, left a party the evening of the murder with a former husband, Mindino, Filipino houseboy, discharged by the star for theft, is about to be arrested for the crime.

Now Go On With the Story.

CHAPTER III.

Mindino became frantic when he understood the full import of Capt. Sommers' words. He spoke rapidly and frenzily in his native tongue although his gesticulations were sufficient to establish that he was striving to deny guilt of the terrible crime. The police captain made a sign to one of his men to take charge of the Filipino boy. Despite his desperate efforts to convince the officer of his innocence in a stream of guttural chatter, the handcuffs were about to be slipped over his wrists when Robin Dale spoke up.

"I don't really think you want this boy for murder, captain," he said in his quiet, soft drawl.

"Got something on your mind, Dale?" Capt. Sommers asked.

"Well, y'see, whoever killed Irma Gladden was someone she trusted and knew very well—it may even have been a friend. They sat together in the car for 10 minutes or more until some rift probably entered their conversation . . . a rift serious enough to lead to the crime."

"What makes you so positive, Dale?" The district attorney took up the matter at that point.

"The murder left us the unmistakable signs, Mr. Kenton. He knew that no one was at this house last night. He waited behind some shrubs on the lawn so as not to frighten Miss Gladden until she had driven her car into the grounds. When she had stopped he came to the side of the car. The intrusion if not entirely unwelcome was at least displeasing to the lady for she preferred to remain in the car rather than invite the visitor into the house. It is probable she may have sensed the reason for the visit and desired to make the meeting as brief as possible.

"They smoked as they talked. The man finally ground out his cigaret with is heel while Irma Gladden's was still lighted when she met her death. It fell to the floor and burned itself out. The man's cigaret, still in the car, you will find, is of a different brand than hers.

"She must have been shot from within the car because her window was practically closed and the position of the body prevents anyone from manipulating it."

"How do you account for the condition of the boudoir?" inquired Capt. Sommers.

"You will find your murderer to be a cool, calculating, intelligent person, captain. After the crime had been committed he realized the necessity for camouflage. As I suggested, he knew no one was at home. He calmly took the key from the lady's silk evening bag, entered the house, ransacked the boudoir to make it appear as though a robber had entered it and then departed, placing the key in the evening bag before he left the grounds.

"I've a feeling that you'll find things of value still left in the boudoir . . . perhaps a search may even reveal if the murderer was familiar with the room . . . but robbery wasn't the motive, captain, it was something deeper than that.

"Y'see, Captain, you probably don't want this boy for murder."

"Well, we'll take him in for larceny."

"But there's no one to appear against him, is there?" suggested Dale with his soft drawl.

"You win, Dale," said Sommers with a grin. "Leave those rings here and get out!" He had turned to Mindino. "You can thank Mr. Dale for saving your hide. I want you to report to me in two weeks at headquarters—understand?"

"Yes, sir, me do . . me come two week." He went to Dale and stood for a moment speaking in his native tongue. The reporter knew, from the choke in the boy's voice, what he was trying to convey.

"Be honest, Mindino, and you'll stay out of trouble," Dale said to him. The Filipino boy nodded and then went hurriedly out of the house.

Shortly after that an inspection of the boudoir was made. Mathilda Christine, the maid, was called upon to assist in identifying valuables and accounting for such as were missing. It developed that Robin Dale's analysis had been correct . . . the most valuable of Irma Gladden jewels, locked up in a flimsy wall-safe over which a silken drape was hung, had been untouched. A number of rings, which she kept in a wide-mouthed vase on her dressing table, were left intact.

"I guess robbery is out," admitted Captain Sommers after the inspection. "So far you've hit it right, Dale."

Robin Dale had been watching Mathilda Christine. She was a middle-aged, rather buxom German woman. She appeared to be on the verge of hysteria, quite unusual for that solid type.

"I wonder," Dale whispered to Sommers as they descended to the lower floor, "if I could ask the maid a few questions? I'm sure there are some points she can clear up, if she'll talk."

Capt. Sommers readily acquiesced and Mathilda was brought, nervous and trembling, into the huge living room.

"There's no reason to be frightened, Miss Mathilda," said Dale reassuredly, "but you do want to help us find the one who killed your mistress?"

"But I can't help you—last night I was out."

"You know who was in the habit of calling on Miss Gladden . . . that may help me."

"Oh, sure—before Mr. Leighton leave the house there was always plenty company und good times." Her tone was unmistakably brighter as she spoke of Irma Gladden's recently-divorced husband.

"You liked Mr. Leighton?"

"He was always goot to me."

"And since he left there haven't been so many visitors?"

"There's been plenty enough . . nearly always it was men. Mr. Sibley come often . . . und Mr. Forsyte, too, always about those stories. Twice came a young man by name Worth making fights with Miss Gladden und once Mr. Sibley's wife come here alone. But no more big parties und fun like when Mr. Leighton was home."

HYDE DEPLORES FARM POLITICS

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 6.—(AP)—Farm relief laws are no substitute for the law of supply and demand, Arthur M. Hyde, secretary of agriculture, told the Midwest Retail Merchants Council here late yesterday. He said:

"After 10 years of blind following political will-o-the-wisps only to find ourselves bogged down at the end, it is high time we forget political schemes and political remedies, and meet plain economic problems on an economic basis.

"The problems of American agriculture are not political problems. The problems of the farm are economics, and if solved, will be solved in the realm of economics.

"The Federal Farm Board was created by political means, but it is designed to take farm problems out of politics and find solutions in practical economics."

Preaching wheat acreage reduction, he quoted figures to show domestic production in the last seven years had outrun demand by an average of 43,000,000 bushels annually, piling up a surplus.

GRASSHOPPERS PLAGUE WEST

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Aug. 6.—(INS.)—A horde of yellow grasshoppers said by eye-witnesses to number millions, was marching across parched corn fields of northern Vanderburgh and Posey counties to add to the havoc already wrought by this summer's unprecedented drouth.

The hoppers came out of some clover fields near Armstrong, about 14 miles north of here. Clouds of the insects with whirring wings settled first on the farm of Henry Rieman, where they devoured a 16-acre corn crop.

From there the grasshoppers rose in clouds to attack a 12-acre corn field on the Albert Meinmar farm.

After destroying Meinmar's corn crop the hoppers raided the field of Otto Scheller.

The grasshoppers came in such numbers that from 100 to 150 of them settled on each cornstalk according to Charles Raven, of St. Wendel, Ind., who led an unsuccessful drive to exterminate the invaders.

Meyersdale Trees Shelter Bats, Reptiles

MEYERSDALE, Pa., Aug. 6.—While Marling Gnagey was hauling logs, he saw a dozen rattlesnakes run out of the brush into a hollow tree.

C. E. Durst, making logs in the same neighborhood chopped into a hollow locust tree and out flew 16 bats.

The day before C. E. Durst sounded a large chestnut tree and four flying squirrels came out of the top.

The princess, who belongs to the Swedish royal family, married Prince Leopold, duke of Brabant and heir to the Belgian throne, in Stockholm on November 4, 1926.

Stenographer Saves 5000 Dollars in Eleven Years

SHE started her Savings Account at the Farmers with a deposit of $1 on August 6, 1919. For the first four years the amount deposited weekly averaged about three dollars. Since 1923 she has been building at the rate of $8 per week and the balance is now over $5,000.00.

And her success hasn't been because of penny-pinching thrift. Using the Savings Account as the keystone of a planned financial program she has enjoyed wonderful vacation trips and other worthwhile pleasures.

She makes frequent withdrawals in order to pay cash for new clothes but the account has grown steadily. Important in the growth is the yearly interest of more than $200. we are now paying.

COMMENT ABOUT HAPPENINGS IN HOLLYWOOD AND ALONG BROADWAY

Charlie Chaplin Composes Songs for His New Talkless Film

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 6.

Charlie Chaplin will be revealed in the guise of composer when his new picture, "City Lights," is released.

The comedian, who is the last irreconcilable foe of talking pictures left in Hollywood, has written the lyrics and music for the theme song of his production. It is to be called "Wonderful Beautiful Eyes" and will be introduced in the synchronized version by means of a phonograph.

As the whole world knows by now, there'll be no dialogue in "City Lights."

Charlie Chaplin

Charlie's tramp character comes into a bar-parlor and hears the song played on a phonograph. After this the melody is woven through the score of the picture.

Charlie always has been particular about the music for his films. Even in the days of the completely silent pictures, he exercised close supervision over the scores destined for theater orchestras.

His labors as composer have produced several other melodies that will be incorporated in "City Lights," but they are untitled as yet.

Incidentally, studio associates believe that the long-awaited comedy will be ready in a month now. But for the recent hot weather the date might have been even sooner. Charlie hasn't worked steadily.

The mere fact that he has been at the studio every day is proof of his serious intent, however. Ordinarily, he would have laid off for a month or more until working conditions were more comfortable.

PAYS TO ADVERTISE

The script for Warner Brothers' "Children of Dreams" called for 10 dilapidated automobiles. William Koenig, studio manager, inserted advertisements in the newspapers offering to pay reasonable prices for the desired cars. They were to be brought to a vacant lot on Van Ness avenue, opposite the studio. It seems that people read the newspapers, for at 5 o'clock in the morning traffic was blocked on the street. Cars were coming from all four directions. Some that couldn't run were being towed. Prices asked ranged as low as $10. It took several hours to clear the lot of rejected cars after the 10 had been chosen.

IN FOUR SHORT YEARS!

Four years ago today, the first Vitaphone pictures were heard at the Warner Theater in New York. Giovanni Martinelli, Anna Case, Harold Bauer, Roy Smeck and others were the performers. A short time later a similar program was offered at Sid Grauman's Egyptian Theater in Hollywood. At that time, 20 silent pictures were showing in Los Angeles. Today there is only one. Seems impossible, doesn't it?

SEEK TO REPEAT

The tremendous success of Norma Shearer's "Divorcee," which was "Ex-Wife" as a novel, has led Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to buy another story by Ursula Parrott. It is called "Strangers May Kiss," and relates a triangle love story in which the principal figures are a major, his wife and a young girl. The setting is Paris, after the war. Miss Shearer is to play the girl. It probably will be her first film after the arrival of the expected heir in the Thalberg family.

Norma Shearer

BICKFORD DOES TWO

A Swedish version of "Anna Christie" is now contemplated by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, with Greta Garbo repeating as the ill-fated Anna and Charles Bickford again cast as the burly Irish stoker Matt. Mr. Bickford does not speak Swedish, but will be coached in the lines of the play.

By the way, this actor, who made his first hit in Cecil B. DeMille's "Dynamite," is scheduled for another important role at M-G-M. He is to be the hero of the film version of the "Passion Flower." William DeMille directs this one.

Complaint

The nights slip past and fade—a vague caress,
I walk alone as lads should never do;
All laughter dead, and in the quietness
Of moon-drenched streets my thoughts wing back to you.

Strange lips are murmuring phrases to you now,
So quickly said—so easily forgotten;
And I court bitterness and know somehow
That love is dead—and life is stale and rotten.

Yet love goes over—and in time to be
I will recall the fragrant nights we shared
Without the slightest hint of poignancy,
And wonder why I suffered—why I cared.

I'll laugh at all the tear-drops shed, I fear,
But meantime sleep comes rather slowly, dear.

—Brooke Edison.

"Always Belittlin'"

That Fred Allen person is going gay again telling gags about us. Allen says that a chorus girl fainted on Broadway in front of the Palace Theater, and had to walk three blocks before she could find a place to fall down.

A policeman flat-footed up to her.

"Are you sick," he inquired, "Do you need an ambulance?"

"No," she gasped. "I'm a little weak, a little hungry. I'll be all right in a minute."

The cop reached for his hip pocket. "A little hungry, eh?" he said. "What ja have for breakfast, kid?"

"Nothing," was the devastating reply, "but a cigaret and Winchell's column."

Heheheh

Fred, by the way, calls the vaudeville stage "The Illuminated Scafford"—the place where actors die standing up.

"And," he inquires, "does Mark's vaudeville tour entitle him to spend his old age in the Actor's Home—or didn't you see the act?"

Add Similes

Suggested for Mr. Wilstach's Simile Dictionary, Ramon Runyon's:

"Sealed tighter than a dying gunman's lips."

Repartee

Frisco's latest comeback is reported in this manner. The comedian was swapping wordage with a movie mogul, known best for his sarcasm.

"Oh," groaned the magnate at his star during a rehearsal, "lend me your derby and cigar and I'll double for you!"

"Yeh?" stuttered the fast-thinking Frisco, "Lend me your desk and your checkbook and I'll double for you!!!"

Funeral Services Friday

Ned Williams avers he actually eavesdropped it on the Great Street of Small Minds. A man and his wife were ankling along Broadway. The squaw chirped:

"That was an attractive couple we just passed."

The husband absent-mindedly replied:

"Was HE good-looking, too?"

Epigram

If Love should visit me again
In the most artful of disguise,
I am satisfied of this—
I would know him by your eyes.

—Louise B. Hirsh.

Oop!

Every knock is a boost. That's why Heflin is so popular.

Scene

It happened in a stay up late spot the other yawning. A group of snobs seated at a ringside table were belittling others in the place. As a young and obviously-from-the-country lass danced by, a sassy member of the snobs audibly cracked:

"Will you look at her dress? Isn't it a scream?"

"Maybe," maybe'd a Rounder, "your dresses wouldn't be so hot, either, if you didn't have soandso's husband buying them for you."

The shock of the merciless but truthful crack brought her to her senses and she amazed the witnesses by going over to the girl she belittled and apologized before the mob.

Just for the Records

We were telling one of the tougher bandits that a certain novelist kept referring to a state's prison as "the can."

"Maybe I've been wrong all along," we said, "I never call a jail, 'the can.' I always thought 'the can' mean a police station, a lockup, the cooler, a small town hoosegow."

"That's right," replied the Lad Who Oughta Know. "You never could call Sing Sing 'the can.'"

"What do you call it, then?" we queried. "'The Big House?'"

"Naw," was the reply between smiles, "you call it 'The College.'"

In Case You Didn't Know

What might easily have been another air tragedy has just come to light: An air mail pilot, bound for the West Coast a few nights ago, suddenly saw a huge black object loom up ahead of him. He thought it might be a mountain, though there were none in that vicinity, or possibly a fog bank, though the night was clear. He nosed his plane upward and zoomed across the top of it.

The black object was the dirigible Los Angeles, which is now equipped with lights all the way around.

Cynic

For those who say that love's a sham,
A vague mirage—a phantom lady;
I really do not give a damn,
Because they're crazy!

For those who say that love's a gem
Of pure delight—this little verse
Was surely never meant for them—
Because they're worse!

J. P. S.

The Retort Swell

Ben Hecht, who with several other intelligentlemen is readying a new magazine, asked Bugs Baer, the best of the newspaper clowns: "How does a new editor get some circulation?"

To which Baer bounced: "Put a bunch of copies on the roof some windly day."

Is His Face Red???

Among other little things that make big paragraphs like these is the following advertisement which was inserted in the New York Times in 1920 by Earl Carroll who has been telling it to a judge since his naked-girl-in-the-bathtub and other "art" operas. Mr. Carroll, it appears, was seeking financial backing for a new show at the time—ten years ago. The advertisement:

"I believe there are still some good, clean, sweet, wholesome, home-loving people left in the world, whose hearts are not so calous that they cannot appreciate an evening's entertainment that doesn't have a Georgette Nightie, a folding bed, or a semi-nude woman occupying the center of the stage."

The big practical joker!

AUTO BOOM AIDS OHIO JOBLESS

CLEVELAND, Aug. 6.—(AP.)—A reaction to the revival of activity in the automobile industry is expected to be felt here within another month by automotive parts manufacturers who estimated that a large part of Cleveland's unemployed would go back to work at that time.

They estimated that between 25,000 and 30,000 would be reemployed. The figure for Cleveland's idle workers was placed at 43,000 by United States census takers early in the summer.

The opinion prevailed among the manufacturers that the low point in their activity was reached a month ago and that the last five months of the year would see a gradual revival.

Taking advantage of the lull in activity engineers have had time to develop many new improvements in automotive parts, it was also pointed out.

GHOSE SPEAKS ON INDIA

Speaking at a dinner meeting last night in the Y. M. & Y. W. H. A., Sailendra N. Ghose, president of the India National Congress of America, blamed British monopolists for the economic crises in India.

S. N. Ghose

Independence for India will be the stabilizer of economic life in the world, according to Ghose. Nationalist India, he said, under the leadership of Gandhi stands for a minimum wage and aspires to have a scale which will not be less than wages paid for similar labor in any other part of the world.

The meeting was sponsored by the Friends of Indian Independence. Today Ghose will leave for Washington, D. C., and New York, where he will address meetings on the same subject.

'Auto Kills Child, Parents Ask $5,000

Death of their daughter, Lucile, 6, who was struck by an automobile in Leetsdale last April 25, has resulted in Michael and Anna Suto, 198 Beaver street, Leetsdale, filing suit for $5,000 damages in Common Pleas Court against Earl Huber, owner of the automobile, and Edward Young, driving it at the time of the accident. In their statement of claim the Sutos say the momentum of the machine was such that it slid 35 feet with wheels locked after striking the little girl. She was carried part of this distance on the front bumper, then dragged.

Your child can get typhoid fever from a fly

The U. S. Public Health Service says: "Typhoid Fever is one of the most common Diseases Carried by Flies"

More than eighty thousand people caught typhoid fever last year, and about one in every ten died. You can only get typhoid fever by eating or drinking something containing the typhoid germ—and these germs are often carried by flies. What is your best protection against this danger?

Be comfortable and safe. Keep your home insect-free. Spray Flit, which is guaranteed (or money back) to be quick-death to flies, mosquitoes, moths, roaches, bed bugs and other household insects. Yet its clean-smelling vapor is harmless to humans. Flit kills quicker if you use the special inexpensive Flit Sprayer. Insist on Flit and don't accept a substitute. Get yours today!

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor.

Del Riego's beautiful composition, "Homing," will be sung by Alta Shultz, McKeesport contralto, over KDKA at 7:45 tonight.

Miss Shultz, soloist at the Sixth Presbyterian Church and a very prominent recitalist in this city and the east, won an opportunity to make Victor records a few years ago but devoted most of her time to concert work in Philadelphia, New York, Boston and Washton. She was one of the first artists to sing over KDKA.

Alta Schultz

Her other selections tonight will include "Hills of Home" by Fox and "Lullaby" by Hanscome.

Jo Tyler, zippy musical director at WJAS, has composed a special arrangement of "Song of the Bayou" for the 8 o'clock Penco program.

Reinald Werrenrath will probably sing "Danny Deever" which we see listed in the Pleasure Hour, KDKA at 9:30.

Nevin's "Rosary" and a duet of "I Love You Truly" will draw many ears to WCAE at 9:30.

MacDonald Smith, runner-up to Bobby Jones in the recently-played American National Open Golf Tournament, and among the top flight in this year's British Open, will be interviewed by Grantland Rice over WCAE at 10:30 p. m.

"Volga Boatman"—theme song of WJAS operators trudging buckets of water to the transmitter cooling plant, gone dry because of recent warm spell. The tank holds 900 barrels.

"Bill" Hetznecker, human dynamo, is the gentleman who told us about the wild animals up at Emporium. We wish to report seeing one rabbit, although the natives have seen everything from a bunny to a bull moose.

* * *

Our trip through the Sylvania Products plant was most interesting. The guide kept harping about efficiency; how things were conserved and all that. When we came to the exhaust machine where the last bit of air is extracted from Sylvania radio tubes, a fair visitor inquired "And what do you do with that?" (meaning the hot air).

"We heat the plant with it in the winter time," retorted the guide.

Walter McCoy, chief engineer at WJAS, laments that he has tried both minature golf and having his tea leaves read, but neither has improved his game of pool.

Jim Hughes is home from Atlantic City all suntanned and full of salt water taffy.

QUESTION A DAY

Harold Little, Squirrel Hill—I understand Wallace Butterworth is taking Bill Hay's place. Is this right? What other programs does he have?

Answer—Butterworth is substituting for Hay for two weeks while the Amos and Andy announcer takes a rest. He has several programs on the blue network, including the Foamers and O'Cedar Time on KDKA tonight.

A string choir, together with Elizabeth Lennox, contralto, and Frank Lapitino, harpist, will interpret Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata" for WCAE listeners at 8:30.

Someone left a package on the WJAS reception room table. It leaked. The table must be refinished.

Just a little joke engineered probably by one of those persons who tosses a wet raincoat over the grand piano.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

Condenser mikes at KQV are so sensitive that ofttimes the calliope on the excursion boats is broadcast, and during cold nights if you listen closely you may hear trains pulling out of the Lake Erie Depot.

ADDING TO HUMAN LIFE and HAPPINESS

After years of research science has demonstrated that the most effective method of correcting ailments is to administer directly into the Blood Stream the proper constituents necessary to incite the Leucocytes to do their intended work.

SERUM TREATMENTS
The Quickest, Safest, Surest Road to Health
One Serum Is Sufficient in Many Cases

We are successfully treating Rheumatism, Neuritis, Skin Disorders, Asthma, Bronchitis, Stomach Trouble, Anemia, Kidney Trouble, Nervous Disorders, High Blood Pressure and Impure Blood, Boils, and Pimples.

Examination now may prevent years of suffering. An ailment checked before it becomes chronic is often easily overcome. Visit the laboratory and learn the truth.

Very many ailments go uncured because the underlying cause is never discovered or even looked for. Successful treatment of any disease follows only after careful and scientific examination.

Watch Your Blood Pressure

When you feel yourself slipping—gradually failing to keep your place in the swift stream of modern life, take warning.

Watch carefully the heart, the lungs, the kidneys and digestion.

The Rainbow's End is within Your reach

DID you ever feel so desperate you wanted to jump out of a window? That's the wrong end of the rainbow.

Ill health is a burden on body, mind and friends. But Nature never fails to signal her dangers. Lack of appetite, flabby flesh, loss of strength and skin troubles is a warning from Nature. This is her way of pleading for help.

The basic requirement for good health is rich, red blood—those vitalizing elements in the blood that build and sustain the body.

Thousands of people have a low blood count—to this may be attributed "run down" systems, skin troubles, and even more serious ailments.

It is dangerous to let the blood count remain below normal.

When S.S.S. is indicated in your case you owe it to yourself and friends to try it.

A CLEAR SKIN COMES FROM WITHIN

If you desire firm flesh, a glowing complexion, energy, vitality and the blessings of health you must keep your blood in good condition.

S.S.S. has been a blessing to millions of people who have taken advantage of its wonderful medicinal properties. It gives to Nature what it needs to build you up so that your system may throw off the cause.

With an increase in the red-blood-cells, you will be on the right road to Health. This is Nature's way to body power and to clear skin. Naturally, with your strength restored, it is easier to fight disease and infection; to enjoy your food and to sleep soundly. When firm flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby, you will feel strong—your nerves will become steady—more happiness and friends will follow.

Take S.S.S. daily at mealtime. It helps Nature build rich, red-blood-cells. It is made from strictly fresh vegetable drugs and has stood the test for over 100 years. All good drug stores sell S.S.S. in two sizes. Ask for the larger size. It is more economical.

An Ailing CHILD

Are you prepared to render first aid and quick comfort the moment your youngster has an upset of any sort? Could you do the right thing—immediately—though the emergency came without warning—perhaps tonight? Castoria is a mother's standby at such times. There is nothing like it in emergencies, and nothing better for everyday use. For a sudden attack of colic, or the gentle relief of constipation; to allay a feverish condition, or to soothe a fretful baby that can't sleep. This pure vegetable preparation is always ready to ease an ailing youngster. It is just as harmless as the recipe on the wrapper reads. If you see Chas. H. Fletcher's signature, it is genuine Castoria. It is harmless to the smallest infant; doctors will tell you so.

You can tell from the recipe on the wrapper how mild it is, and how good for little systems. But continue with Castoria until a child is grown.

The New Ford De Luxe Phaeton

THIS car, newly added to the Ford line, has achieved distinguished favor because of its low, fleet lines, beautiful colors, and attractive sport treatment. The spirit of youth is reflected in its sprightly appearance and alert performance. To an unusual degree, it combines style and utility.

Among its pleasing features are an adjustable front seat, folding windshield and windshield wings of Triplex shatter-proof glass and a side fender well for the spare tire. Upholstery and trimming are in keeping with the latest mode. The rear quarter is slightly depressed below the belt to receive the top when down, thus preserving the straight flowing lines of the car.

ROCKET TESTS' SITE IN N. M.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6 (AP).—Experiments in shooting rockets to extreme altitudes, financed by Daniel Guggenheim, will be carried on by Prof. Robert H. Goddard, of Clark University, Worcester, Mass., at Roswell, N. M. That site was selected because of favorable atmospheric conditions.

Prof. Goddard has been conducting rocket experiments since 1912 with aid of the Smithsonian Institution, Clark University and the Carnegie Institute. Guggenheim recently made a grant to permit further work.

At Roswell small rockets will be sent up first, and finally one capable of ascending from 50 to 75 miles will be sent up by gas propulsion and with parachutes to regulate the speed of the return to earth. The rockets will carry thermometers, barometers, electrical measuring apparatus, air traps to collect samples of air at various altitudes, and other instruments.

Health Better Than Riches

"Before I was married, my mother and sister and I did all the farming work on a 64-acre farm for eleven years. I married a farmer and now in addition to my housework and the care of my children I help him with the outside work on our farm. After my last child was born, I began to suffer as many women do. Our family doctor gave me medicine but no results. One day he told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did and now I am a new woman and I know that good health is better than riches."—Mrs. Clyde I. Sherman, R. #1, Lickdale, Pennsylvania.

"WONDERFUL" SAYS THIS MAN AS TO KONJOLA

Gained Twenty Pounds in Six Months—Stomach Trouble and Nervousness Conquered.

No wonder Konjola is known as the new and different medicine with more than a million friends. No wonder seven million bottles of Konjola have been used in two years.

MR. JACK SCOLLICK

Konjola wins, time after time, when all else tried has proved a failure. But Konjola is not sold on promises; this modern medicine for the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels stands solely on its amazing record of success. Just see what Konjola did for Mr. Jack Scollick, 3624 California Avenue, Pittsburgh. Do you wonder why he is so enthusiastic about it? Then see the Konjola Man at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, this city, and hear from him the remarkable story of this remarkable medicine. What, indeed, could be wiser than to profit by experiences like that of this young man?

Read what he says of Konjola and what it did for him, and fix in your mind that the files of Konjola fairly overflow with just such sincere endorsements. To the Konjola Man Mr. Scollick said:

"Stomach trouble and nervous indigestion caused me suffering for the past two years. Food produced gas, and I suffered terribly from stomach pains. I heard so many people talking about Konjola that I decided to put it to the test. I have taken eight bottles, and I am sleeping fine at night and my nerves are calm. I have gained twenty pounds in six months, and I want to say that I think Konjola is a wonderful medicine. It did for me all that was claimed for it, and I am happy to recommend it to anyone suffering from stomach trouble."

Now, isn't that the kind of medicine you want? One that goes right to the root of the ailment Konjola is designed to relieve. Konjola contains no alcohol, no nerve-deadening drugs, no heart-depressing chemicals. It is not designed for mere temporary relief.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, this city, where daily he is meeting the public and explaining the merits of this new and different medicine. Konjola is sold at all Dow Drug Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

SLEUTH TRAPS TWO IN THEFT

Two young men who, police say, were trapped by a city detective after robbing a downtown cigar store, were held for investigation when arraigned in Morals Court today. They told police they were Edward C. Schaub, 19, of 508 Arch street, and William Peteresca, 32, of 220 Isabella street. They were arrested by City Detective Murray Edlis.

Yesterday Harry Davis, manager of the store in the Loew's Theater Building, complained that within the last 10 days money had been disappearing at night from the cash register. Davis and Edlis stood on guard last night.

Edlis later reported that during their vigil Schaub, said to be a former elevator operator in the building, entered the store room by climbing 12 feet through an air shaft. He then robbed the cash register, Edlis said, while Peteresca stood guard outside. They were arrested in the basement.

According to Edlis, the youths confessed when shown that some of the money found in their possession was marked currency taken from the register.

QUIZ WITNESS IN LINGLE DEATH

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—(INS.)—A man who claimed to have been an eye-witness to the murder of Alfred (Jake) Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter, was being secretly questioned here early today while authorities continued their efforts to find some connection between the Lingle slaying and the subsequent assassination of Jack Zuta, reputed vice and liquor baron.

The new Lingle witness was Joseph Jeck, alias Denton and Howard, at various times an employe of gambling houses here. Jeck was brought to Chicago from St. Louis at the suggestion of Patrick Roche, investigator.

Jeck had told the police he could find James (Red) Forsythe, reported hiding in Wisconsin and mentioned in connection with the murder. After spending some time and money seeking Forsythe, Jeck reported only that he had seen him once and then lost the trail.

Wisconsin authorities still were searching for two men and a woman reported to have been with Jack Zuta when he fled from Chicago in an unsuccessful effort to escape a gangland death.

JONES LEADING IN W. VA.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 6.—(AP.)—His lead steadily mounting, James Ellwood Jones, McDowell County coal operator, today had a majority of 33,000 over his nearest opponent for the Republican nomination to the United States Senate. Benjamin L. Rosenbloom, former Congressman, had 24,914; Judge Harry Shaw, Marion County, had 22,256, and former Gov. Albert B. White had 14,159.

This contest was for the seat of retiring Senator Guy D. Goff.

Of the state's 2,342 precincts 1,565 were reported.

The winner will face former Senator M. M. Neely, unopposed Democratic nominee, in the November election.

TWO MEN LOOT ROAD MACHINE

John Schuetz, 21, of 3493 Carson street, South Side, and John Cagney, 21, of 2814 Sylvania street, Mt. Washington, were fined $25 or 10 days in jail this morning at a hearing before Magistrate John J. Sweeney in South Side Police Court.

The men were arrested early this morning by Carrick police, after complaints from the O'Herron Construction Company, engaged in road repair work on the Becks Run road, that the men were tampering with gasoline shovels which were parked along the road.

The men admitted having taken gasoline from the shovels, and a five-gallon can and a length of hose were found in their possession.

Virginia Nominates Dry League Enemy

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 6.—(AP.)—Howard Smith, a candidate who failed to get a satisfactory rating from the Virginia Anti-Saloon League, and Joseph T. Deal, defeated in the Hoover landslide, were the Democratic nominees for Congress today in the Second and Eighth Virginia districts as the results of yesterday's primary.

In the Fifth District, Thomas O. Burch, whose campaign centered about his denunciation of the incumbent as being a "lukewarm" supporter of Alfred E. Smith, had apparently won the nomination against Congressman Joseph Whitehead.

Fire Sets $10,000 Fireworks Ablaze

BALTIMORE, Aug. 6.—(AP.)—Fireworks valued at $10,000 were destroyed last night in a fire that damaged a shed of the National Fireworks Company at Eastern avenue, near the city line. The display, lasting for more than an hour, tied up traffic and attracted hundreds of persons, mostly children.

5 HURT AS FIRE TRUCKS CRASH

Five volunteer firemen of Birdville today were nursing injuries received when their fire truck was struck by apparatus of Natrona while both departments were en route to answer a general alarm of fire at Creighton late yesterday. The injured were given treatment at the Allegheny Valley Hospital at Tarentum and taken home.

The injured firemen are Robert Lear, 35; Walter Thorne, 25; Veto Periello, 20; Verne Ripper, 30, and William Smith, 18, all of Birdville.

Returning home from a twilight baseball game at Courtney, Charles Levondusky, 23, of Courtney, was killed and four others injured when the automobile driven by Levondusky collided with one driven by Audrey Wray, 19, of Floreffe, on a narrow bridge at Floreffe, near Clairton, late last night.

Zolie Boleidh, 21, of Clairton; Steve Levondusgy, 23, of Courtney, and John Yorgo, 22, of Large, riding in the Levondusgy car, were admitted to the McKeesport Hospital, where it was said the first two named were hurt seriously.

ROB SOUTH SIDE RESTAURANT

Three patrons of the Busy Bee restaurant, at 2520 Carson street, were ordered into the kitchen, with the manager and a waiter, by the two armed holdup men who entered the place early this morning. While one held them there at the point of a revolver, his companion took $16 from the cash register.

According to William George, the manager, the robbers entered and drew revolvers. One ordered the five to raise their arms and march into the kitchen. After obtaining the money and warning the victims not to follow them, the two bandits fled to the street and drove off in an automobile.

Lundgren Arrives At Roosevelt Field

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Aug. 6.—(INS.)—Fred Lundgren, piloting his monoplane Emsco, landed here today at 10:50 a. m. He was 10 hours overdue from Amarillo, Tex., on a proposed round-the-world flight.

Lundgren was accompanied by W. L. Seier, a test pilot. He was expected to pick up Roger Q. Williams, trans-Atlantic flier, here, and make a round-the-world flight to beat the Graf Zeppelin record. Williams will replace Seier.

Lundgren said he spent the night at Akron. He expects all will be in readiness for a start for Harbor Grace by Friday.

Van Loan Cleared of Fugitive Charge

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 6.—(INS.)—Charges of being a fugitive from justice lodged against Herbert H. Van Loan, author and playwright, as the result of child abandonment charges made by his wife in New York, today stood dismissed here.

Deputy District Attorney George Stahlman declared in asking that the fugitive charge be dropped that Gov. C. C. Young had refused to sign extradition papers for Van Loan.

'Evidence' Plea Fails to Save 2 Suspects

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 6.—Earl Harden, 32, and Joseph Danko, 27, of Dunbar, when arrested in the business district said a five-gallon can of moonshine liquor in their automobile was 'evidence.'

The pair claimed they were working for the Fayette County detective, but District Attorney J. B. Adams denied it.

Two Injured as Auto Crashes Pole

Mrs. Fannie Ackerman, 717 South Braddock street, was in the Braddock General Hospital with a possible fractured nose and head injuries and a sister, Miss Nelle Lazear, of 309 West Hutchinson avenue, was treated for lacerations of the face received when an automobile in which they were riding crashed into a telegraph pole in Ardmore boulevard early today.

He left the local airport at 6:55 a. m., Pittsburgh time, for Roosevelt Field.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Are All Step-Dads Cruel And Heartless?

Gertrude Bowers believes they are, and produced as evidence a tale of horror that made the Inquisition sound like a kindergarten game.

"Don't talk to me about second marriages," she raved, "I'm the victim of one of them. And you ought to see my poor helpless mother."

We agreed that it was a tragic tangle, but we still persisted that stepdads often turned to be great guys. We knew that some of the gang would agree with us, but we weren't prepared for the shoals 'n' sheaves of letters that came pouring in, boosting for our side.

Are you a step-dad or a step-ma yourself? And have you sometimes had a tiny, wistful feeling of being an outsider? Then here's where you have your day, old dear. For here is just a happy fraction of the love and gratitude which the world feels to the "borrowed" mother or dad.

"Dear Sally Martin—I have just read Gertrude Bower's letter to you about what awful things second marriages are, and I want to tell you, and her, a story of the fine, kind stepfather I had, and the very happy second marriage of my mother.

"Gertrude is trying to judge everybody by herself, and I guess she doesn't think such a thing exists. But I know. I've lived with a stepfather just as she did . . . but oh, what a different sort.

"I am 27 now and happily married myself to a fine young man who had a very bitter experience in his first marriage.

STEPFATHER KIND

"I don't remember my own father. He died when I was very small. A couple of years later my stepfather came into my life. He was a very young fellow, too. He was much younger than my mother. But that made no difference. He was good and kind to both of us. At first, I was a little afraid of him, but I was soon anxiously waiting for him, just as mother was.

"He seemed more like my big brother or my pal than like my stepfather.

"On hot summer days the three of us went on fishing trips out of the city, or to the parks, swimming, or on little outings like every happy family enjoys. We certainly were a happy family. And to this day, my stepfather has never forgotten me. I look for his letters, and he looks for mine. It has been 12 years since my dear mother was taken from us. My step-father has never married again.

"My husband has a little boy by his first marriage. He lives with his grandmother, but I am living in hopes that some day soon we will have him with us, and I may be a stepmother, too. I go to visit the boy, and both he and the grandmother know he would have a good home with me.

"Lots of things are said about stepmothers and fathers, but there are lots of good ones, and we shouldn't forget it. I am very sorry for Gertrude, but I think she's unjust to try to put all stepfathers in the same class. "AGNES."

FLORA HAPPY, TOO

And here's Flora. Flora's a happy stepdaughter, too.

"Dear Sally:

"I've just been reading what Gertrude Bowers has to say about stepfathers, and it made me mad. Give me a stepfather every time.

"I have one. So I ought to know just as much about them as she does. My mother married him 15 years ago. My oldest brother was 16 then, and my youngest two. There were six children of us, and I want to tell you, Sally, he was better to us than our own father had been.

"Of course, my mother never would have stood for him acting like Gertrude's stepfather. She would have taken us kids and got up and left. But he never tried to. He was just naturally a fine man.

"So, Gertrude, don't judge them all by any one. And stop hating men and being afraid to marry yourself. Get up and get out of this muddle you're in. You can be happy if you'll stop thinking everybody's as mean as that man your mother married. They're not. I know. Both my stepfather and my husband are fine fellows. Here's wishing you happiness, and I do hope you find it. And if you don't find it the first time, try again. FLORA."

So there you are. And if that doesn't make the world seem a fairer, friendlier place, there's something wrong with your carburetor, stranger.

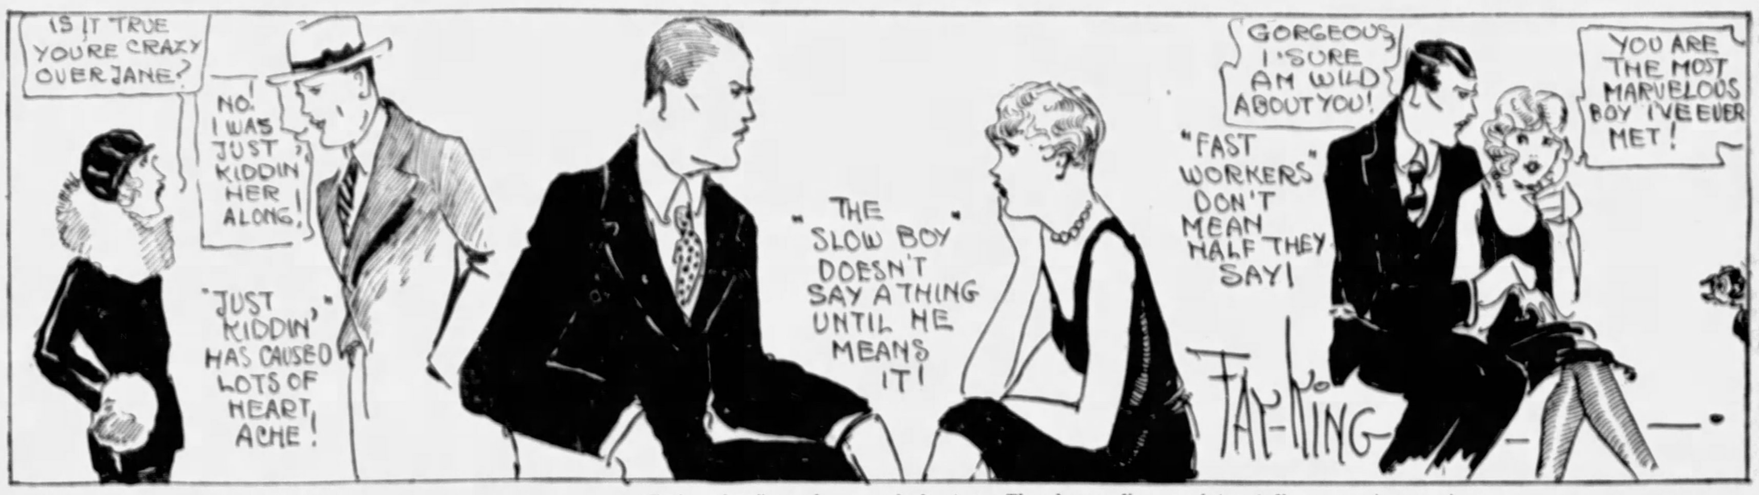
'Fast Workers' Slow Up When They Really Care, Says Fay King



IS IT TRUE YOU'RE CRAZY OVER JANE?
NO! I WAS JUST KIDDIN HER ALONG!
"JUST KIDDIN'" HAS CAUSED LOTS OF HEART ACHE!
"THE SLOW BOY" DOESN'T SAY A THING UNTIL HE MEANS IT!
GORGEOUS! I'SURE AM WILD ABOUT YOU!
"FAST WORKERS" DON'T MEAN HALF THEY SAY!
YOU ARE THE MOST MARVELOUS BOY I'VE EVER MET!
FAY-KING

By FAY KING

Nothing is easier than to kid somebody you don't really care about! But "kidding" has caused a lot of heartaches. Especially when the one of the kidders begins to really care.

"Fast workers" merely are scalp hunters. They have a line which they spring when they meet someone that interests them.

Caring more for themselves and their ability to put across their winning chatter, they can read their lines as well and disinterestedly as an actor a part.

When you really care for someone you cannot be so self-sure. Even the fast workers slow up when they really mean what they say, and often fumble the real declaration of their love.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Loves Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Relieves Lillian of Unpleasant Task

I found little assurance for the success of my errand in Jim's directions. If Harry Underwood, pressed for time as Lillian had said, had gone for a tramp in the woodland which skirted the northern boundary of the farm, it meant that he was tremendously agitated by the arrival of the big box addressed to Lillian from Robert Savarin. I knew that the loves, the hates and the friendships of the man were as big as his body, and I quailed at my realization of the fight he was waging with his jealousy of this sudden apparition from the past.

Infinitely I dreaded the keeping of my promise to Lillian, involving as it did, the showing of Robert Savarin's letter to her husband. But there was no use dodging the task or delaying it, and I gave Jim a sudden quick command.

"Please bring my car around here," I said, and he dropped his work and went to the machine which stood near the kitchen door where I had left it. I needed the few seconds necessary for his errand to pull myself together. I also wanted to scan the distant woodland to see if there were any trace of our guest.

It was not until the car had climbed the wood-path to the crest of the hill, however, that I saw him. If it had been summer he would have been completely hidden by the foliage of the woodland, but far away through the bare trees I saw his tall figure striding, almost running, down one of the winding wood trails, too blocked by fallen limbs for a car, which came out upon the "kiln road" to Sag Harbor.

Where was he going? I caught my breath in dismay at the sudden conjecture that he might be planning to return to New York alone. I knew that I could never overtake him on foot, and I sounded the horn of the car as vigorously as possible—vainly, however, for he paid no attention to it. Then, just as I had given him up, I saw him stop short, and look to the left, evidently in the direction of some noise he had heard. The next minute three figures, bearing shotguns, came into view and with thankfulness, I recognized Dicky and his two nephews whom he had taken for a shooting trip.

That Dicky saw his friend's agitation, I was sure when he turned to the boys and with a word and a gesture started them up the hill toward our own woodland. I could not tell whether or not he saw the car and guessed my presence on the hilltop. At any rate, he gave no indication that he knew anyone else was in the woodland as he clapped his friend on the shoulder after a minute's colloquy, pulled him around and started climbing the slope toward me.

I knew, none better, the David and Jonathan friendship which existed between the two men, knew that they had few—if any—reservations from each other, and as I watched Dicky's animated gesturing, I guessed that Mr. Underwood was telling my husband of the arrival of the box.

The conjecture give me infinite relief, for I knew Dicky's power to minimize tragedy, even to turn it into something resembling comedy, and I turned my attention to the boys, who, tramping ahead of the men, had caught sight of me and broken into a run.

Henry, the younger, reached me first, and laying his gun on the ground, began to undo the bag slung across his shoulder.

"Oh, Aunt Madge!" he exclaimed. "We got some rabbits. Have a look!"

I put up my hand in quick protest. "Oh, no, Henry, please!" I exclaimed. "I'm glad you had good luck, dear, but I don't like to look at animals or birds that have been shot."

"Aw! they're beauties," he returned, plainly disappointed at not being permitted to haul his trophies forth.

"Shut up! Hank!" William gave the command peremptorily as he came up to us. "Aunt Madge's got some sense. She doesn't want to see all that mess. I don't know what you want to lug 'em out for, anyway. They're enough to make anybody sick."

There was something strained in the boy's voice and I looked from his brother's face to his with instinctive comparison. With sudden comprehension I put a quick question.

"Is this the first time you've been hunting?"

"It's the first time we ever killed anything," William replied. "We've shot a lot at targets, and once Uncle Edwin took us into the woods a little way, but we didn't even see anything running. And I don't ever want to see anything again."

His younger brother looked at him in contempt.

"Mollycoddle!" He almost spat the word out, and I saw William's face whiten and his fists clench.

"Take that back!" he said hoarsely.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND.

Lemon Oil

Every bridegroom is just a "jay-walker" on the Primrose Path.

Nothing—not even a tight shoe or an unimpressionable man—can make a woman suffer like an unbecoming hat.

* * *

Probably, the average man broadcasts his lovemaking these days, because he thinks it's a shame that only one woman should enjoy the "higher education" of listening to such an artist.

* * *

The man who tries to drive a car with one arm and make love with the other is either too foolhardy to be trusted, or too skillful to be convincing.

* * *

The tragedy of a woman's life is that she is constantly finding a man who is "different," only to discover that he's "just like all the rest."

Sometimes, a man actually enjoys doing the things that are good for him; but they don't give him half the thrill that they would, if they were labeled "Dangerous" or "Keep Off."

* * *

Divorce may sometimes be a necessary surgical operation; but like most surgical operations, it leaves a scar—and you are SO long recuperating from the effects of the shock and the anesthetic.

A wife is the "innocent bystander," who always gets hit, when her husband starts fooling with firearms, or experimenting with his "deadly fascination" for the tender sex.

The modern girl's notion of an ideal husband appears to be one who is perfectly satisfied with a cold-cereal breakfast, a cafeteria lunch and a tin-can dinner. * * *

When a woman is fickle, she is false—but when a man is fickle, he is perfectly natural!

Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

The girl with brown eyes and chestnut colored hair can wear beige, but she should never wear brown, which provides no contrast to the natural coloring. Dark blue and old blue are good colors for her. If her skin is fair she can wear black.

Coiffures designed for the shoulder length head of hair show all manner of ziggy partings. Some go on the bias, some continue slantwise to the back of the neck, some go straight and turn a corner. Hairdressers offer unique designs, but the average woman who hustles through life is inclined to stick to the simple effects.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

It's a Wise Precaution to Safeguard Sight

Vacation may mean a trip to Europe, a summer at the seashore, or any other outing on or near the water.

Pleasant as these events are they have their drawbacks. Persons with sensitive eyes know what it is to have discomfort from the glare of the sun on the water. Sometimes the experience is extremely painful.

It is here that properly made glasses will protect the eyes from a condition that might prove serious. That delicate instrument, the eye, with proper care and attention, should last a lifetime. Yet it can be put out of commission by a grain of sand.

The glare of the sun is capable of causing blindness. Nobody wants to take this risk and it can be avoided.

Many persons, after a day on the water, even though they possess very good eyesight, may have badly inflamed eyes. Either the direct sunlight or the "sky-shine," may set up an irritation that is almost unbearable.

Light is made up of an unceasing stream of rays. Sunshine and "cloud-shine" send out an endless procession of these light beams. They are not alike. Some are illuminating rays, and others cause the sensation of heat. Those we consider here are those producing chemical changes in the objects they strike.

The photographic plate of a camera is changed by these rays. The same rays "sunburn" the skin by their action. The eyes are greatly irritated by them.

In recent years, experimentation with these light beams, or the "ultra-violet rays," as they are called, has demonstrated what marvelous effect they have on human beings. They promote growth and well-being, and life itself depends upon them.

The ordinary window glass does not allow these rays to penetrate. But now man has learned how to make a certain window glass which has the quality of transmitting the ultra-violet rays. Such glass has been found beneficial to the health of young children when used in windows of the home and schoolroom.

When it comes to the eyes we are dealing with quite a different problem. Overstimulation of the delicate retina of the eye is brought on by these rays and real harm may be done by them.

When you go on the water, if your eyes are at all sensitive, you will be wise to wear glasses or spectacles made of a glass which protects the eye. After much experimentation such a glass has been found.

It was necessary to produce a glass that would not cut out useful vision, as glass densely smoked will do. It was important, too, to find a glass which would not distort, or seriously change the normal appearance of the natural colors.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Telephone Calls

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. When one is telephoning, whose place is it to ring off, the one calling or the one being called?

2. Is it always necessary to say "goodby?" H.

The one who has made the call is the one who is supposed to end the conversation. But sometimes it is impossible for a busy person to wait for this wished-for event! Then, if the other person does not ring off in a "respectable" time, the one being called may courteously close the conversation by explaining that some one is waiting; that he or she is going out; that he or she is due at an appointment, or may give some other excuse.

2. Yes! I am constantly surprised at the growth of the idea that it is not necessary to say "goodby" when one has ended a telephone call. Often this means that the person does not know that the other person has rung off, and it gives a most unpleasant feeling of incompleteness, and often of extreme rudeness.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My friend says that it is proper to address a doctor's wife as Mrs. Dr. Blank, but I say that a doctor's wife should not use the title of doctor, but only her husband's first name, as Mrs. G. M. Blank. Which is correct? V. G. B.

You are right. It is a terrible social error to address a doctor's wife by her husband's title. She is Mrs. Gregory Mason Blank.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, August 7

The astral activities for this day accent the possibilities of pleasant and profitable social, domestic and affectional affairs and with those business matters pertaining to them or to feminine interests under a fortunate sway. New projects and letters may give minor concern, but substantial gains may also be looked for in railroads, travel, mining, machinery or real estate. The mind may likewise be shrewd, cautious, profound and businesslike.

Those whose birthday it is may turn sharply and enthusiastically to purely personal affairs during the year, although the mind will be shrewd, sagacious and discerning. Substantial progress may be made in either feminine or artistic interests or in those more material projects of mining, machinery or real estate, although new projects or writings have a hint of treachery or duplicity.

A child born on this day may be extremely versatile, with many social, intellectual and cultural possibilities, which should receive excellent training and opportunity for development. It may be practical as well as artistic and mentally keen.

G. O. P. LINES UP FOR FALL FIGHT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—(AP)—The high command of the Republican party gathered in the capital today to begin marshalling a new combat force to hold through the fall elections the party's majority in the Senate and House.

As the first step in the reorganization, Claudius Huston, of Tennessee, is to submit tomorrow at the meeting of the executive committee of the party his resignation as chairman of the national committee. This will be accepted immediately and Senator Fess, of Ohio, will be named provisional chairman, pending confirmation by the full committee in the fall.

Robert H. Lucas, of Kentucky, commissioner of internal revenue for more than a year, then is to be appointed chairman of the executive committee.

Between them, Senator Fess and Mr. Lucas, with the latter bearing the brunt of the campaign, propose to launch at once the long-delayed battle for election of Republican Senators and Representatives.

SHAKEUP IN P. O. JOBS GOES ON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—(Universal.—Postmasteer General Walter F. Brown will carry forward his "house cleaning" in post-office appointments for the South, regardless of the trouble it has caused in the Republican party organization there, it was learned authoritatively today.

The meeting of old-line Republicans in Savannah, Ga., last Saturday, at which a resolution hotly attacking Brown was adopted, was not disturbing him, it was said.

The hand of Col. Horace A. Mann, a leader in the Hoover-for-president campaign in the South in 1928, was seen in the Savannah session. Mann and Brown long have been at odds on how patronage should be distributed in the South.

Suggestions from the Mann camp that Brown was manipulating the Republican organization in the South to control the southern vote in the Republican National Convention in 1932 were scouted by Brown's close friends.

2 HELD IN PLOT TO CHEAT BANK

Ralph E. Smaltz, 21, former teller for the Potter Title and Trust Company, and Joseph Colela, 38, of Alpon street, waived hearings this morning in Central Police Court before Magistrate Leo Rothenberg and were held for court, charged with conspiracy to defraud and cheat. Bail was fixed at $5,000 each.

They were arrested Saturday on complaint of William K. Gamble, cashier of the bank. Gamble, this morning, testified that Colela wrote checks on the St. Clair Savings and Trust Company and brought them to the Potter Title and Trust Company, where Smaltz cashed them. These checks proved worthless, he said.

He also testified that a worthless check for $3,825 had been cashed by Smaltz for Colela Friday.

Smaltz told the court he became acquainted with Colela about a year ago. A former employe introduced him, Smaltz said.

MOTHER HELD FOR MURDER

Mrs. Mary Prentice, 25, of 843 Steuben street, was held today on a charge of murder by a coroner's jury inquiring into the death of her infant daughter, so that the court may appoint a commission to determine her mental condition.

Police said the mother placed her baby, Mary Agnes, on a kitchen table and almost severed its head with a knife. Ellen Duffy, 10, sister of Mrs. Prentice, said she had been "acting queerly for some time."

Physicians who had examined the woman at the time told the coroner that she had been temporarily insane. Mrs. Prentice was not in the courtroom during the inquest, but remained with the matron.

DO-X TAKES OFF IN 30 SECONDS

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Aug. 6.—(Universal)—Like a monster prehistoric bird, her 151 feet of wings gleaming silvery in the sun, the gigantic Dornier flying ship DO-X flew yesterday from the Swiss side of Lake Constance to Friedrichshafen and back to Altenrhein.

This was the second of the 10 days' trials, testing the 12-motored airboat's capacity to fly the Atlantic ocean to New York, early next month.

A start test resulted in the DO-X and its 41 tons being lifted from the lake in 30 seconds. The roar of the 12 engines could be heard for 30 miles.

In contrast, once the DO-X was in the air and her motors throttled, the craft passed over Friedrichshafen with astonishingly little noise.

Dr. Claude Dornier, designer and builder of the plane, supervised the test.

SIFT KILLING OF COAST GUARD

BOSTON, Aug. 6.—(INS.)—An official inquiry was launched today into the death of Boatswain's Mate Louis A. Pratt, of the United States Coast Guard.

He was shot in a blunder which the service will sift to determine if courtmartial and possibly murder charges will be made.

After it was first reported that Pratt had been killed by rum runners, a report was made to guard officers that another coast guard boat had fired on Pratt, who was in a motor surf boat.

According to Surfman Cleo Faulkingham, who was with Pratt, a coast guard boat opened fire on them with a machine gun, evidently mistaking them for rum runners. The shooting occurred in Ipswich Bay off Essex.

Pratt and his companion both were in uniform.

The identity of the boat which fired was not revealed.

Commander L. R. Sands, of Portsmouth, N. H., will direct the inquiry.

TROOPS CALLED IN INDIA RIOTS

LONDON, Aug. 6.—(INS.)—Two companies of Indian troops were posted in Sukkur, in Northwestern India, today, following two violent outbreaks between Hindus and Moslems.

Twelve were reported dead and 185 injured in prolonged communal rioting finally halted by police and troops, while at Allahabad five Hindus were killed when police fired on a Hindu procession of 15,000 which had been banned by the chief of police.

At Hissar a crazed Hindu ran amuck and killed 11 Mohammedans with a shotgun.

Washington Water Supply Adequate

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 6.—Assistant Superintendent Guy Morrow, of the Citizens Water Company, announced in an address before the Rotary Club that Washington faces no water shortage.

He said there is enough water stored in the impounding reservoirs to supply this city for five months, at the present rate of consumption.

Gloria's Marquis Returning to Paris

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 6.—(INS.)—After making definite arrangements with his wife, Gloria Swanson, concerning their separation, the Marquis de la Falaise will return immediately to Paris, it was learned today.

The decision to separate came about, according to friends of the couple, because Miss Swanson did not want to give up her motion picture work and live in France.

Eight Overbrook and Brookline youths, arrested last night during a fight as to who had the right to use the Brookline ball field, were discharged today by Magistrate Thomas Jones.

The Overbrook boys produced a permit from the Bureau of Recreation, allowing them to use the field every Tuesday night until September. The magistrate told them to get police protection if anyone interfered with their game in the future.

CITY PUSHES WAR ON SHORT WEIGHTS

Low 'Rib' Coal Price Bared

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

Billy Brennen, dead several years, is remembered vividly by his brethren at the bar. In court he was always smiling, always cocksure, but not offensively so. He was a good actor.

Young lawyers learned by watching Brennen and listening to him. Oliver K. Eaton, now an outstanding attorney, was young and inexperienced many years ago when he and Mr. Brennen were associated in the same case. One of their witnesses "went bad" but Mr. Brennen, as he turned back to counsel table, was still smiling-ly confident, outwardly, in the face of this setback.

"Why, Mr. Brennen," whispered the disappointed Eaton, "that witness hurt our case. Why are you so happy about it?"

"Young man," Mr. Brennen advised, "you'll learn that the best time to smile in court is when you're sick at the stomach."

Somebody is running around the country making radio speeches and describing himself as the editor of Sidewalks of Pittsburgh. This man is an imposter, we'll have you understand. We have never made a radio speech and never will make one because we can't think of anything to say. If you hear this radio imposter coming over your loud speaker, do not be misled; you are not hearing the genuine. The first and only notice we've had of our double was in a letter yesterday from a Canton, O., reader, who said that our radio talk "was o. k., if you did break into a cold sweat."

At the luncheon of the Exchange Club in the William Penn the members were singing the Star Spangled Banner. As their voices boomed out the line, "Sweet land of liberty," they were unexpectedly joined by a chorus from an adjoining room, where the Crusaders, the society which opposes Prohibition, was meeting, in irony.

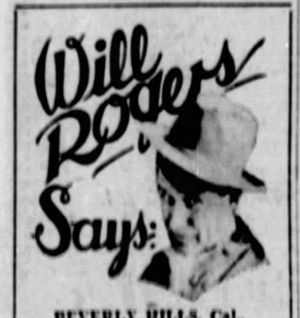
Move a young policeman to Central Police Station and immediately he will envision for himself a handsome promotion. Central seems to be the finishing school for cops. Inspector Hoey started there as a detective. The new inspector, Dennis Hennessy, was made a lieutenant there three years ago. Zack Flemming, a turnkey at Central, was promoted to a lieutenancy and shoved over to the North Side. Jack McNirtney, only a tipstaff in Central's Morals Court, was good enough to be made a captain in Oakland. And there are many others.

However, none of them is able to tell you of the gangster as well as Charles Francis Coe, who is a mere writer. Mr. Coe writes in one and two-syllable words of the gunman and the bootlegger. He dramatizes his stuff to a high temperature but always seems convincing.



BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Aug. 6.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Now Mr. Hoover being a business man, I bet you he takes that Senate and House of Representative space in the Capitol Building and turns it into miniature golf courses. Would you believe it there is thirty-five hundred of 'em in the city of Los Angeles. Then people ask what's the matter with this country. Nothing, only there is millions got a "putter" in their hand when they ought to have a shovel. Half of America is bent over. In two more generations our children will grow upwards as far as the hips, then they will turn off at right angles and with their arms hanging down we will be right back where we started from. Darwin was right. Yours,

WILL.

MT. LEBANON QUIZ GETS FIGURES

Residents Near Beadling Paid Only 12 Cents a Ton, Association Is Informed

The Pittsburgh Coal Company, which is demanding 75 cents a ton for coal pillars supporting Mt. Lebanon property under threats to undermine it, accepted 12 cents a ton for similar coal supports in "retreating" from a neighboring mining operation, according to information given the Sunset Hills Civic Association, its secretary and treasurer, Van Brooks, stated today.

Property owners near Beadling reported this was the price paid the company under conditions similar to those existing in Mt. Lebanon, Brooks said.

The company is seeking to club Mt. Lebanon property owners into paying an excessive price for the coal pillars, in the opinion of householders of Sunset Hills, a select residential community of Mt. Lebanon, Brooks declared.

PRICE HELD HIGH

This opinion was expressed at a meeting of the civic association, at which its president, Robert Zima, presided, held last night in the Sunset Hills school hall.

Summing up the discussion of the subject, Brooks said:

"The consensus of opinion was that the coal company wants to add a substantial sum to its treasury and decided to reach out to Mt. Lebanon for it, fixing the value for coal pillars at an excessive figure. Residents of Sunset Hills are not interested in the negotiations, as the mining operations do not affect this section. This area, as is the case in the great bulk of Mt. Lebanon property, has been mined out years ago."

The section of Mt. Lebanon affected by the "retreat" of the company from its mining operations, centered on its municipal building and embracing its business district and valuable residential and apartment properties, is estimated to comprise only 5 per cent of the area of the township.

RESUMES MINING

The company resumed its mining operations today under the condition that they avoid some 20 blocks of coal tentatively set aside by township and company engineers in their survey for requirements of surface support of municipal buildings, streets and sewers.

The results of the survey were contained in a report submitted today by W. F. Vegeler, township engineer, to Township Solicitor E. B. Goldsmith.

One of the most important considerations in determining the quantity and location of coal supports wanted by the township is whether the coverage, or depth of the coal, is sufficient to give practical immunity from damage without leaving the supporting pillars. This depth is nearly 350 feet along one section of the township, centering around the municipal building.

SEE SAFE SUPPORT

Mining engineers pointed out that should even half of the coal be removed from under the property affected by the pillar removal plan ample surface support will still remain.

This survey was decided upon at the first conference Monday between township and company representatives in negotiations started by the company to arrive at an amicable adjusiment to forestall condemnation proceedings and an injunction suit planned by the township.

The question of price will be taken up at a conference to follow action by the commissioners on required coal support.

INSPECTORS BEGIN NEW ROUNDUP

More Than 400 Scales and Measures Taken on First Day of Bureau Campaign

More than a score of inspectors from the Bureau of Weights and Measures, under direction of Chief Inspector James P. Bailey, today began another roundup of merchants charged with using short weight and scales and measures.

The raids began yesterday when more than 400 scales and measures were confiscated, taken to the City-County Building and destroyed.

Previous to starting the raids Chief Bailey shifted every inspector in his bureau. He denied there was evidence of protection being given short-weight merchants.

The value of the scales confiscated ranged from $10 to $100, the chief inspector said. They showed shortages of from one ounce to the pound to eight ounces in larger purchases.

At one grocery, said to have sold moonshine, the raiders found a two-gallon can with a hollow tin cylinder inside, which reduced the contents by about one-fifth.

CITY LEADS U. S. IN TYPHOID WAR

No city in the entire nation had fewer deaths from typhoid fever than Pittsburgh during the first six months of 1930, a report issued today by the filtration division of the City Bureau of Water revealed.

But two deaths for the six-months period were reported here. One of those, the report states, was from Apollo, Pa., the patient being removed to West Penn Hospital and dying a short time later. Figures upon which the comparison base rate is made have been compiled by the United States Public Health Service.

During the same period only 10 typhoid cases were reported here, showing a decided contrast for the better down through the years, according to the report, when 2,049 cases were reported for the city alone and not including the North Side, during 1907.

MISS HARD-BOILED

Raquel Avoids Men While At Elaborate Ball

CHAPTER XIX.

Raquel felt as if she were floated down a long flower-banked aisle, heavy with perfume. Easter in the church at Hermosa. Faint far-away music, Sister Concepcion playing—

There was a pressure against her arm. Her head was flung up with the quick motion of a thoroughbred scenting the race. The aisle was a wide hall, festooned with roses. Red and pink roses. The air was heavy with them, and with a subtle fragrance she did not know. It made her slightly giddy. Music, from a long way off. The strum of some insinuating stringed instrument, like a pulse-beat. The chafing of sticks against serrated edges of dried gourds. Music that reminded her of Keno Joe's cabaret in her home town.

She was passing white blurs of faces. The night-club where she once danced the tango. No. A fairy palace. She was in a fairy palace, on the arm of a pink man. At the other side of the pink man walked her specter. The specter smiled, wagged its head at the white blurred faces.

"Do not be frightened, Princess," Elsworth said, bringing his whiff of a pink mustache uncomfortable close to her ear. "I'll not leave your side."

"What did you say, darling?" The smile was wiped from the specter's face.

Presented
Raquel Is Introduced To the Guests

"I was telling the Princess she must put her confidence in us, Bonnie m'dear. She seemed a bit unsteady."

Raquel felt the pressure of Elsworth's arm again.

"But no!" Mrs. Bosart's affrighted agate eyes bulged. "That will never do, Courage, my dear. Already the place is buzzing with news of us. Can't you hear it? They are filled with curiosity to know who you are. They cannot believe their eyes, that there are two great beauties, so much alike, in the world. Courage!"

Raquel drew a deep breath. The heavy fragrance no longer affected her. She need not be told she must not be a coward.

Pink Elsworth was presenting people to her.

"The Princess del Manzanilla."

"Ah, delighted I'm sure Princess Mah—mah—"

This fusty little fellow bleated like a sheep. If she could laugh—

"Man-zan-ee-ya." Raquel rescued him. Her red lips held the syllables in a caress.

"Precisely," said the fussy little fellow and stepped on the jeweled heel in front of him. The offended lady blasted him with a look.

"You are a stranger in our country?" This was a towering woman with an acid face and white hair. Her sharp eyes bored like steel points. Did she mean to accuse, Raquel, of not being a stranger?—Oh, but I am a stranger. If you only knew—

Relieved
Pleased as Elsworth Makes Suggestion

"Si, Señora." Her voice had the low resonant sweetness of a cello.

The steel points stopped boring.

"We hope you will remain sometime—a few Europeans worth while—Forgive me, Princess."

"Si, Senora. Gracias."

Elsworth touching her arm:

"Princess del Manzanilla, may I present Monsieur Alphonse?"

"Monsieu—" It was as much as she could do to refrain from crying out with joyous relief, laying her head against the white expanse of shirt above his kind heart.

"If you will take my arm, Princess," Elsworth suggested, "I will find you refreshment—a cooling drink."

"Perhaps the Princess will do me the honor of refreshing her," Alphonse suggested.

"Oh, yes, please—"

Alphonse led her away.

"That young swine of an Elsworth would spoil everything," Alphonse grumbled as

PARLEY ON SPAN REPAIRS FAILS

Responsibility for ownership of the Ivory street bridge, recently condemned by the city Department of Public Works as unsafe, was still a matter of conjecture today.

Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang called a meeting of Ross Township commissioners, officials of the Butler-Harmony Short Line, and county authorities for yesterday in his office to discover just who is responsible for the repair of the span. No one appeared.

Efforts for another meeting will be made by Lang shortly, he said.

In case the proper responsibility for the condition of the span cannot be determined, the city will have to start repair work. Ivory street bridge is a concrete span, erected nearly 30 years ago. It was condemned after Department of Public Works engineers found concrete cracking and underpinnings sliding. Traffic has been rerouted.

Penn Township Home Damaged by Flames

Fire starting in a defective flue damaged the home of Ben Johnson, 7509 Manila street, Penn Township, to the amount of $100 last night. Volunteer firemen from No. 1 Company, Lincoln Park, extinguished the flames which for a time threatened to spread to a nearby residence.

'Wildcat Brewery' Definition Given In Grilling

Why is a wildcat brewery wild?

Three prohibition agents who had raided a beer-brewing garage and described the place as a "wildcat brewery" in testifying in a Center avenue liquor case before the United States commissioner were unable to explain the term.

An attorney who raised the question in an effort to minimize the reputation of the brewing activities of his client, finally forced a definition, to wit:

"A wildcat brewery operates commercially as opposed to a home-brew plant, where the owner makes stuff he calls beer for his own use."

$50,000 ASKED IN CAR BLAST

Injuries sustained in a fire and explosion in a street car are fixed at $50,000 in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court by Mrs. Lucy Groome and her husband, William C. Groome, against the Pittsburgh Railways Company. Mrs. Groome and her young daughter were on a trolley car bound for Avalon, when the fire occured. There was a stampede of passengers, she claims, and says she was compelled to crawl on her hands and knees to the exit, where she fell to the street. SAVING ON CUT COSTS WOULD BE OFFSET

Lang, Answering Bain, Points To Seepage as Probable Allegheny Plan Handicap

Any saving in operating costs at the city filtration plant at Ross near Aspinwall, by reduced pumping charges, should the proposed government high dam on the Allegheny River these become a reality, would be offset by necessity of sump pumps for drainage, a letter made public today by the Department of Public Works revealed.

The letter was an answer by the department to a request by Lieut. Col. Jarvis J. Bain, United States district engineer here, for information showing how city water projects along the proposed dam site would be affected.

Similar necessity for sump pumps to affect drainage at the Brilliant and Aspinwall stations would arise, the letter, signed by Director Edward G. Lang, of the department of public works, revealed.

SAVING EXPECTED

In his request Col. Bain was of the opinion, it was said, that the increased height of the dam would result in operating savings in pumping water to the sedimentation plants.

Although several thousand dollars might be saved, the public works head explained that water seepage into ash tunnels and the pump pit floor, which would be 10 feet below river level, would necessitate in installation of the pumps. This would offset any savings made in reduced pumping costs.

SIMILAR EFFECTS

The letter read:

"Similar effects would be observed at the Aspinwall station, although probably to a lesser degree. It would be necessary to pump continuously at this station, as at Ross.

"No date is at hand at present, to estimate the probable cost of all the pump requirements. Raising of the pool would have many adverse effects."

Similar conditions would probably result at the Brilliant station, but because of the porous condition of the foundation structures, the seepage conditions would be greater, according to Lang's letter.

WILL ABANDON STATION

The present station there is scheduled to be abandoned upon completion of a new proposed station, Lang said. However, waterproofing on the new station to take care of prevention of seepage would cost in the neighborhood of $10,000.

The government plan for the Allegheny River at those points is to construct existing Dam No. 2 in such a way as to cause a higher elevation or to replace Dams Nos. 2 and 3 with a new No. 2, much larger in scope and providing for greater navigation possibilities.

Erected with a movable crest, the dam would not affect pump and filtration station to any great extent, Col. Bain believes.

GOES FISHING, 'CATCHES' DYNAMITE

EXCLUSIVE PHOTO

"Billy," son of Pittsburgh's chief plumbing inspector, with his grandfather along Wolf Creek, Slippery Rock, Pa., where he made a "big catch," 13 sticks of dynamite, caps and fuse that Game Commissioner Hilgar said illegal fishermen probably had been using to blast out fish.

BOMBS PERIL FISHERMEN

SLIPPERY ROCK, Pa., Aug. 6—Illegal fishermen were responsible for a near-tragedy on Wolf Creek, one mile west of this place, when they planted dynamite in the stream in an effort to kill fish, and left the deadly bomb with fuse and detonators attached, after it failed to explode.

"Billy" Lambert, 8, son of Thomas G. Lambert, Jr., chief plumbing inspector for the City of Pittsburgh, was fishing when he got what he supposed a tremendous "bite." Calling his grandfather, T. G. Lambert, Sr., Billy hauled his catch to shore, and only the presence and knowledge of Oliver Hilgar, game warden of this place, prevented the Lamberts from an examination of the bomb and their probable deaths.

The Slippery Rocks Sportsmen's Club has been stocking the stream for several years, since mine pollution has been removed, and it is one of the spots in this section where anglers can find Waltonian recreation.

State police and local authorities are waging war on campers and itinerant parties who are killing fish by any means but the legal ones.

The Camera Question Box

Today's question—Is the Senate probe the best way to uncover election irregularities and other public scandals?

CHARLES A. WALDSCHMIDT, City Solicitor, North Side—I don't think so. It seems that testimony and statements in the past have been caused by bias and the evidence cannot be probed by actual facts. The best way is to have local authorities take care of them.

C. A. Waldschmidt

JAMES G. BALMER, theater manager, Dormont — Under present conditions the probing of corruption in elections done by the Senate is a good idea. It has worked successfully in the past and will do until some better way is found.

James G. Balmer

MISS JEAN WALD, stenographer, Squirrel Hill—I approve of the Senate probe because this action should be carried on by someone in a high position like that of the Senate.

Miss Wald

MISS FLORENCE JOHNSTON, secretary, North Side—Senate probes on elections have not been a cure. If investigation is to be carried on officials should be appointed by the police department.

Miss Johnston

JOSEPH A. BECK, lawyer, Schenley Farms—In so far as election irregularities are concerned it would be better for the Senate to allow the same to be uncovered by other governmental agencies.

Joseph A. Beck

MERLIN LEWIS, advertising man, Fort Pitt Hotel—The Senate probe is too cumbersome. Investigators should be appointed by the department of justice if a Federal case or by the police department if a city or state case.

Merlin Lewis

The recommendation for dismissal will stand until the return of Mayor Charles H. Kline, now vacationing in Europe.

ELABORATE NECKLINES ADORN ALL THE NEW AUTUMN FROCKS

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, AUG. 6.—Whether plain or elaborate, the new dresses for the coming season, are all getting it in the neck. It has been quite some time since so much attention has been given to the neckline which is in many cases quite the most elaborately treated part of the model. Cowl necklines, long tucked collars, self fabric jabots, these are just some of the treatments being meted out to the neckline with effective results. The cowl effect is particularly good and has a flattering effect on every type of figure. The long V and the jabot are both very kindly inclined to women of generous proportions, provided that the rest of the frock is cut on simple lines with a complete avoidance of frilly effects.

DELIGHTFULLY SIMPLE SILK frocks will animate the urban scene during September as vacations fade into the background of happy memories and the anticipatory joys of a new season make the return to town an eager one. These little frocks replete with charm and artistry are in many instances replacing the more elaborate type of frock that we used to associate with town wear, and it looks as if they have been definitely accepted as correct for all but the most formal of day functions. Simple little frocks of fine black velvet are also liked, but they too rely on their cut and absence of detail, rather than the material, which, whether it be velvet, crepe de Chine, georgette or crepe, must beyond all give the effect of carefully calculated simplicity.

BOTH OF THE MODELS shown are admirably suited to convey to you, just what Paris offers in the "little" dress line. The model to the right is by Drescoll Beer and is a smartly simple little affair of black crepe de Chine with the softening effect of the draped neckline pleasingly emphasized. The group of pleats in the front is repeated in the back.

BISHOP ON TRIAL IN WINE CASE

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—(AP)—A jury which declared itself devoid of prejudice against prohibition and which includes Bruce Barton, author and advertising man, today had been selected to try Charles Mroena, former Methodist minister and self-styled bishop of the Czechoslovak Orthodox Catholic Church, on the charge of violating the Volstead Act.

Mroena and eight co-defendants are charged with withdrawing sacramental wine by means of permits obtained through misrepresentation, and diverting it to secular purposes.

Seven of the sixteen indicted have pleaded guilty, including John Pedrykanyn, of Youngstown, O., and a New York truckman.

Friend of the bishop, explaining his connection with the two churches, said there was nothing in the Czechoslovak creed to keep him from accepting ordination in another body and that he was already a bishop in the Catholic church when he was ordained a Methodist minister in Jamaica, L. I. The government contends he was not a bishop of the Slav church until after his ministry in the Methodist church and that he withdrew part of the wine while still serving in Protestant body and while he had no need of it for religious purposes.

SURPLUS BOON, FARMERS TOLD

DOYLESTOWN, Pa., Aug. 6.—(AP)—Addressing 400 farmers from New Jersey at National Farm School here, John A. McSparran, former master of the Pennsylvania Grange, said he was glad to live in a country where there is a surplus of farm crops.

"You hear so much about a surplus of farm crops because of the advent of the tractor, automobile and farm machinery," he said, "that people are getting the wrong impression. I'm glad to live in this country where there is a surplus.

"If it does not rain for three more weeks the surplus of farm crops will be taken up next spring and there will be no surplus. A long drought does much farm damage, of course, but it will mean that higher prices will be brought for the crops now available."

His successor is Anton Tsikhon, who has been chairman of the builders trade union. When Uglanov recanted before the party's convention, delegates from all over the Soviet Union hooted at his abject apologies.

MISS HARD-BOILED

By JANE DIXON

they made their way toward the dining salon. "Madame is insane with jealousy of him."

"I am glad." Raquel could laugh again. "Madame is a watchful herder. If the pig strays, she will beat him until he goes back in the pen."

She was hungry, she found. And parched. How good it was of Alphonse to enjoy seeing her eat. To bring her delicious iced drinks in frosted silver cups! Good Alphonse.

Would she favor him with the first dance? It was the tango in the French style. Slowly rythmic; not fiery, as the Spanish know it.

"Indeed I will," she said, hurrying him along toward the palm grove that was, ordinarily, a ballroom. "I'm not sure I can dance it, but with you to guide me, I feel I can do anything."

"You are a nice child, ma petite. You are clever, and you have gratitude. There are many who are clever. But gratitude, that is indeed rare. Especially in the young."

They glided into the tango. Alphonse surprised her by being a dancer at once smooth and yet vitally alive. He felt the spirit of the dance, was a harmonious note in the rhythm of the music. Let them stare, white faces over black shoulders, darker faces over white shoulders. She was with Alphonse, who had given her beauty, and she was safe.

The dance was finished. She was sorry. She would like it to go on. Indefinitely. Forever—perhaps.

Out into the rose-garlanded hall. Men were following them. Clamoring, polite but firmly, for a dance. Go away. I do not want to dance with you. I want to dance only with Alphonse.

Raquel did not know how it happened, but suddenly Alphonse was no longer at her side. There was a clot of men, of beautiful women. She drew herself up imperiously, swept them with black eyes. No. Alphonse was not among them.

"A dance, Princess—"

"No. Gracias." She hurried along the hall. There was a wide arch to her left. It opened into a sun-garden, moistly warm, thick with foliage like a patch of jungle threaded with tiled paths. She chose the path to her right.

Raquel sped along the path until she came to an opening in the tangle of green. There was a tiled fountain in the center of the opening with water spilling musically over its basin. A bench of white marble, set back in a nook of tall graceful ferns and trailing vines with leaves like wax, invited her to find haven there.

She sank down gratefully among the cool green leaves. This was something like. This way heaven too, another kind of heaven, a heaven for a princess. She thrust out her feet. Silver slippers with the tiniest highest heels like stilts. A spider must have spun these stockings. Out of pale rose dawn and moonbeams.

Ugh! Spiders. One must have fallen on her shoulder. Her bare shoulder. She brushed at it. Her hand hit damp flesh. A face against her shoulder. She pushed at the face. Stale tobacco. Strong drink. Arms were around her now holding her fast. She clawed at them, struggled.

"Princess," a thick voice said, "my princess—ran away from Ellie—Ellie found you—"

Stars and Spectators as Pirates Bowed to Governors at Charleroi

STRICKEN SCORES ON HOMER — Just as Ellwood City had a big day when the Pittsburgh Pirates invaded that town for an exhibition game on Monday, Charleroi declared a holiday yesterday when the Corsairs visited there for a battle with the Charleroi Governors, of the Mid-Atlantic League. Charleroi's celebration was more genuine than Ellwood City's, because the home team took the measure of the big leaguers, 10 to 4. Pitcher Vic Latriam gaing the decision over Leon Chagnon. Stricken, first baseman for Charleroi, who is leading the Mid-Atlantic League in home runs, hit a homer with two on in the first to put his club off on the right foot. Stanage went up to hit for Brickell in the ninth and broke his bat in hitting the ball and was thrown out. Notice freak picture of this.

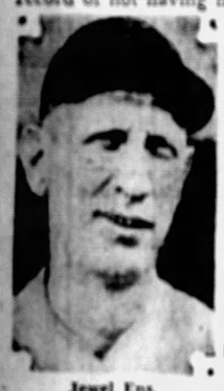
BUCS AT HOME IN 30 OF 35 GAMES

THE FIGHT OF the Pirates for a place in the first division, which, if successful, will mean the keeping up of their record of not having finished outside the first four since 1918, may be said to be starting in earnest today with the opening of the final Forbes Field series against the Eastern clubs of the National League. For it is a stage of the schedule that marks the arrival of what may be the last good opportunity the players under Jewel Ens will have before the finish to establish themselves in a money berth.



Jewel Ens.

The time is at hand for the Rovers to put in their hardest licks in order to make the best of whatever advantage there is in playing at home. From the latter angle, that portion of the 1930 program upon which they are now entering is the most favorable of the entire season. Of their next 35 games, no fewer than 30 are to be played at Forbes Field, starting this afternoon, and if the Bucs do not improve their position in the race during that period there won't be much likelihood of their doing it later in hostile territory.

EVERY OTHER CLUB in the circuit will be met during the long home stand that is to be broken only by two short visits to Cincinnati and one to Chicago. Six games are scheduled here with the Robins, a two-game series today and tomorrow to be followed by a four-game engagement later, four with the Giants, four with the Braves, five with the Phillies, five with the Reds, four with the Cubs and two with the Cardinals.

The only breaks in the home stand from now until September 6 will be three games in Cincinnati on August 24, 25 and 31, and two in Chicago on August 26 and 27. But for these short jumps, the Bucs will remain at their own grounds until they have cleaned up all of the home games for the season except two with the Reds slated for September 23 and 24. It's a fine chance for a late drive to regain some of the ground that was lost earlier in the season before the club was able to put its full strength on the field.

THE NEWS THAT one of the star pitchers in the Southeastern League is none other than old Rube Marquard, 41, who is manager of the Jacksonville club, drew attention again to a condition that major league scouts report from all parts of the country.

They send back word that there is little material worth while to be found in some of the little leagues for the reason that the best players are old fellows who long ago slipped out of the big show.

Rube Marquard.

IT WOULD BE useless, of course, to bring these veterans back to fast company, for though they are still able to shine in the sticks they could not get by in the main tent. The situation raises the disquieting question as to where the majors will be able to find new material after the next few years. The old players in the minors will not do, and young material apparently is not being developed in sufficient quantities to meet the growing need. The falling off in youthful timber has caused major league ball to slump in recent years, and the immediate future doesn't offer much hope for improvement.

THAT THE CASE of Marquard is not an exception, but just an example of a general rule, is indicated by a survey of the minors that has been made for the American League by Henry P. Edwards, publicity director of the Barnard circuit. He found the same condition existing practically all around.

The report, covering 11 leagues and 1,509 players, showed one player who is 43 years old; six who are 42; six who are 41; seven who are 40; 16 who are 39; 18 who are 38; 24 who are 37; 29 who are 36; 33 who are 35; 48 who are 34; 60 who are 33; 66 who are 32; 63 who are 31; 87 who are 30 and 93 who are 29. Only two players as young as 18 were found, only 15 as young as 19, and only 50 all told who are under 21. Not much there to help the majors in the years just ahead.

SOUTHERN MAY HELP BUCS

BARRED, CARL KAUFFMANN MAY QUIT

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Aug. 6 — Discouraged and embittered by the unfortunate break that ruined his hopes of winning his fourth successive National public links golf championship, Carl F. Kauffmann, of Pittsburgh, defending champion, who was disqualified yesterday because his opponent marked the wrong score on his card, plans to retire from the municipal tournament competition.

C. F. Kauffmann

While taking the decision of the tournament committee as a sportsman, the Pittsburgher nevertheless was disappointed by the turn of affairs and the manner in which the championship here has been conducted.

"I will truthfully say that I think I have had enough of public links golf," Kauffmann stated following his disqualification. "Courses closed when you come to practice, courses open to the public two days before the tournament and the general run of the things retard the progress of the game, and I think I've had enough of the public links competition."

CHAMPION RULED OUT

Kauffmann was disqualified in the qualifying round yesterday after completing his test with a card of 41-42 for an 83 when it was discovered that his opponent, Guy McCall, of Buffalo, had credited the champion with a 4 instead of a 5 on the eighteenth. News of the decision did not reach the champion until after he had returned from another course, where he had gone to improve his shots.

The disqualification of Kauffmann not only eliminated Pittsburgh's big threat for the title, but ruined the chances of the Pittsburgh team to win the Warren G. Harding trophy, awarded for the best showing of contesting teams. Pittsburgh was second to Brooklyn when the ruling

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: MME. DE POMPADOUR LOST $1,500,000 IN ONE EVENING—Madame de Pompadour, who, from the daughter of a domestic, rose to be the virtual dictator of France under Louis XV, cost the French Treasury upward of 100,000,000 francs, according to an official estimate. Her incredible extravagance and her domination of French public life were a continuous scandal, which engendered the terrible hatred of the people and culminated in the French revolution. Her famous "jeu," in which she lost seven million livres (about $1,500,000) to Bernis and Choiseul in one evening, took place at Choisy in 1749. CHARLES SIVERD, REMARKABLE BASE-STEALER—While playing for the El Toro baseball club some years ago in Rochester, N. Y., Siverd was first to bat and walked and stole second, third and home, scoring the only run. Six days later, while playing at Canandaigua, N. Y., he did exactly the same thing. This is verified by the records of the El Toro club.

Morgantown Nine Evens Legion Series

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Aug. 6.—(AP.)—Morgantown drew up to even terms yesterday in the series with Huntington for the West Virginia American Legion junior baseball championship, by winning 10 to 9 and sending the two teams into the third battle tomorrow which will decide the title.

With Huntington's Exchange club apparently headed for the title in the encounter, Andy Vecchio, of the West Penn nine, champions of Northern West Virginia, tripled in the eighth with two men on bases and counted the winning run himself on an overthrow.

Five errors aided the cause of Huntington, holder of the Southern West Virginia title.

DENNY'S SPEED BIG ASSET OF YOUNGSTER

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Comments today on the Fred Brickell-Denny Southern deal, involving the Pirates and Phillies, indicated that while both clubs benefited by the transaction, the Ens entry received the bigger lift. This contention is based on several points. The need of a dependable right-hand batter, who can hold up his end in other ways, was felt on the home roster, and the fleet Southern should be able to fill the bill.

Fred Brickell

Ira Flagstead long has been one of the game's best outfielders, and Ira hits from the right side, but the veteran will not get any better, while Southern should keep on improving for several years.

LIKE HIS STYLE

Forbes Field patrons have a fondness for Southern owing to his habit of robbing batters of basehits when he performs in the Oakland Orchard. Moreover, Denny, one of the fastest of the right-hand hitters in getting to first base, always is doing something at the plate. The new Buccaneer can slug the ball, but he like to bunt when the enemy is expecting something else.

Brickell is especially effective at the plate against righthand pitching, but when the southpaws perform, Fred's cudgel loses much of it potency. Manager Ens realizes that some of the clubs save up their lefthand pitchers for the Pirates and he wants to be in a position to throw in some right-hand hitters in case the practise becomes tiresome.

SHOULD HELP PHILS

The Wichita speed boy will have a good chance to win a regular berth with the Quakers. Centerfield is very much open and Fred's bat will give him a bulge over other candidates. Brickell should clout many a drive over or against the notorious rightfield fence.

Southern is expected to join the Pirates here tomorrow, while Brickell probably will hook up

Nick Altrock Says:

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—I see the University of Chicago ball team is just leaving for an out-of-town game in Japan. I would hate to pay the carfares all that distance and then run into a rainy day. After all this hot weather I wish our club had games scheduled in Germany or somewhere like that. I would just love to play doubleheaders with Pilsener every day. One of the freaks of the season is where the St. Louis Browns went without Dan Howley and where the Cincinnati Reds landed with him. When you look at seventh place in both leagues it seems like they just split up Howley two for one.

STEEL CITY LEAGUE RIVALS BATTLE TODAY

CIVICS MEET TRIANGLES IN FEATURE

SANDLOT GAMES TODAY

STEEL CITY LEAGUE.
Western Division.
Hill Top Triangles at Observatory Civics.
Eastern Division.
Lincoln Place at St. Elizabeth.
CITY LEAGUE.
Dormont at W. O. W.
MINOR LEAGUE.
Brodericks at South Side Aces.

By TOM BIRKS.

The Steel City League swings into the sandlot limelight this evening with two big games, one in each section. At Pleasant Valley a real battle for the leadership of the western section will take place when the Observatory Civics clash with the Hill Top Triangles. Should the Triangles win this game, it would seem that Joe Renner's club will be the candidate to meet DeMor in the post-season playoffs, but the Civics, with McConnel on the mound, are a tough team to beat.

In the eastern division, the Lincoln Place aggregation clashes with St. Elizabeth at Lawrenceville. Lincoln Place is in second place in the league standings.

BRODERICKS FACE TEST

A real battle will be staged in the Minor League when the North Side Aces clash with the undefeated Broderick club.

In the City loop, Mike Jesdinak's hard-hitting W. O. W. outfit will clash with Dormont. The South Hills team will probably send Carroll to the mound in an attempt to stop Cholko and his mates.

The evening does not show many games, but tomorrow all the leading clubs will swing into action. Homestead Aces go to Wilmerding for the outstanding fray in the West Penn League.

Book Shoe dropped its second game in a row in the City League last evening, losing to Homewood, 9 to 4. North Side Civics defeated Stowe, 17 to 3, and Dormont defeated Pleasant Valley, 6 to 1.

In the Greater Pittsburgh League, the Homestead Aces lost to Verona, 6 to 4, and Edgewood won from Whitaker, 4 to 0.

LIFERS WIN

B. & O. lost to Reliance Life, 8 to 3, and Dravo walloped Mine Safety, 10 to 1, in the C. & I. League, and in the Philadelphia Company loop, Duquesne Light defeated the Railway nine, 9 to 4.

Raybestos took over Glinbels, 8 to 3 in the Commercial circuit, while in the Central League, Cosletts defeated the Soho Traders, 6 to 1.

In the Monon Valley League, Speers nosed out the Charleroi Robins, 3 to 2, and Fairhope and Monessen tied at 6-all.

J. L. Thomas downed the Duquesne Trade, 15-4; Crawfords walloped the Lincoln Civics, 14-0; N. S. Elk downed Swissvale, 5-2, and Immaculate Heart nosed out Garfield, 2-1, in independent tussles.

In the Steel City loop, the Doodfels were blanked by the East End Crimsons, 2 to 0. Brodericks trounced Melrose, 12 to 2, in a Minor League game.

PESEK VICTOR

CINCINNATI, Aug. 6. — John Pesek, heavyweight grappler, won from George Vashell, of New Orleans, in straight falls here last night.

CURLEY DENIES RUMORS ON FIGHT

BY HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Dick Curley, manager of Mike Dundee, of Rock Island, Ill., who boxes Jackie Rodgers, of the North Side, in the 10-round main bout at Hickey Park, Millvale, tomorrow night, arrived in town this morning to join his boxer, who has been working out here for two days.

The first thing Curley did after reaching town was to spike rumors that have been going the rounds for a few days to the effect that this bout is in the bag for an easy Rodgers victory.

"All of these reports that Dundee is washed up and no fit opponent for Rodgers, or that we have agreed to do a 'dive' to Rodgers, are maliciously wrong, and evidently are being circulated by persons who have an axe to grind." Dick, a veteran manager and promoter, said. "Mike will be in there to give his best. He never brags outside the ring about what he will do; he lets his fists speak for him. If he connects right with Rodgers, he is liable to do the same thing to him that he did to Johnny Datto — score a knockout in the first round."

TO RE-SIGN DATTO

Incidentally, a Rodgers-Datto bout is in the making again for the Meyers Bowl, where it has been arranged twice, only to be called off each time, first by Rodgers and then by Datto. The Bowl yesterday had Rodgers' managers hauled up on the carpet before the boxing commission in an attempt to make them go through with their most recent contract to box Datto. The commission's decision was that the contract had been fulfilled when Rodgers took on Johnny McCoy, a substitute for Datto, but urged that the match be made again, if possible, because there appeared to be a public demand for it.

Buck McTiernan, of Swissvale, is hard at work daily in the Homewood gymnasium for his bout with Joe Dundee, former world welterweight champion, at the Meyers Bowl next Monday night. He has passed up the Burke Glen open-air quarters because they lacked certain facilities that are essential in training.

CARD COMPLETED

The card for Monday night's show was completed today with the signing of Peaches Gallagher and U. S. Carpentier for the second bout and Jimmy Perry, of Alliance, O., and Angelo Vergione for the opener. Billy Brent and Young Saylor, in a return bout, make up the semi-final.

Emmet Rocco, of Ellwood City, has been signed to take the place of Tom Heeney as the opponent of George Panka at the Bowl one week from Monday.

Joe Lohman, Toledo heavyweight, boxes Lorenzi Angelo, of California, at St. Louis tonight.

Heinie Wagner.

MORE THAN 40 PER cent of the games lost by Heinie Wagner's Boston Red Sox have been dropped by one run. They have lost the unusual total of 28 contests by that narrow margin up to date, more than any other club in either of the major leagues. They have won only 13 games by a lone tally. The other Boston club, the Braves, surprisingly, has been the most successful club in either girdle in winning games by one run, having captured 23 games against 17 lost. The Athletics have won the largest number in the American League, 19, while losing 11. The Cardinals have lost the largest number in the National, having been defeated 22 times against 14 victories.

THE PIRATES HAVE been victorious 16 times in games decided by one run, and have been nosed out 13 times. The Reds have won 21 and lost 17, and the Cubs have won 17 and lost 13, the Robins have won 13 and lost 11, the Giants have won 12 and lost 16, and the Phillies have won 10 and lost 17.

As compared with the A's and Red Sox in the American, the White Sox have won 18 and lost 10, the Tigers have won 19 and lost 15, the Indians have won 15 and lost 15, the Browns have won 17 and lost 18, the Senators have won 13 and lost 14, and the Yankees have won 12 and lost 15. Strangely, the same number of games in the American and National, 126, have been decided by one run.

IN VIEW OF the far-from-normal showing that a wretched course caused him to make yesterday, when he took an 83 for the first 18 holes at Jacksonville, for which par is 72, Carl F. Kauffmann, Pittsburgh's three-time National public links golf champion, might have failed anyhow to qualify in his attempt to win a fourth straight title. But that doesn't alter the fact that the golf powers have put him in a unjust light and made themselves and their rules look ridiculous b disqualifying him under an absurd regulation that should have no place in any game preaching sportsmanship.

Because the player with whom he was paired marked down Kauffmann's score incorrectly at one hole, and because the Pittsburgher preferred to act the gentleman he is rather than check up and point out the mistake, the greatest municipal linker in the country is barred from further competition in the tourney for something with which he had absolutely nothing to do. It is hard to see wherein it would be sportsmanlike to insist on the right to inspect a score kept by an opponent, and it is equally difficult to see any sense in a rule that prohibits the necessary change in figures being made later. It's a farcical regulation, and its enforcement is in keeping with the action of the powers that selected a burnt-out cow pasture in the southern heat of Florida for a tournament to be played in the sultriest month of the year. The whole business has been a blunder that has not helped competitive golf.

Dennis Southern.

JUDGING FROM THE present needs of the Pirates, there is no doubt that the Pittsburgh club will be benefited by the waiver exchange whereby they have obtained Outfielder Dennis Elwood Southern, from the Phillies while turning over to the latter club Outfielder Fred Brickell. Possibly the Phils, too, will be helped, as they have wanted Brickell for two years and he may fit into their scheme of things better than did Southern. For that reason the waiver deal may easily turn out to be one of the kind that helps both clubs. The value of the two players is attested by the fact that when the double waiver request was put in both men were claimed unsuccessfully by clubs higher than the Bucs and Quakers in the National League race.

THE PROMISE THAT the swap will strengthen the Bucs is seen mainly in the fact that Southern is a right-hand hitter. Up to date this year Brickell has batted .303 to .282 for Southern, but for a whole season as a rule there is only a slight difference between the hitting averages of the two, and Denny should be the more valuable here because the Rovers had too many left-hand hitters in the outfield department in the two Waners, Brickell and Jim Moscif, against only two right-hand stickers, Adam Comorosky and Ira Flagstead.

When Flagstead was out of commission recently and either Lloyd or Paul Waner was unable to play, Manager Ens was forced to weaken the attack by using Brickell against left-hand pitchers. Southern will remedy that drawback. Besides, in addition to being a fine lead-off man and one of the fastest men in the majors, the former Martinsburg and Cumberland player, is a better outfielder than Brickell, who has not improved greatly since he first came here, and that ought to help some, too, considering the number of games that slipped away in center field while Lloyd Waner was out.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—(AP.)—Bruce Flowers, New Rochelle, N. Y., Negro, knocked out Tommy Grogan, Omaha lightweight, in the first round of their scheduled 10-round bout at the Queensboro stadium last night. Grogan weighed 138, Flowers 136. The end came after two minutes and 19 seconds of the opening round.

FAIRIES DOWN JAYS, RETAIN M-A LEAD

Fairmont retained its grasp on first place in the Mid-Atlantic League yesterday by pounding out an 11-to-3 victory over Jeannette at Fairmont. The Fairies tallied four runs in the first inning and were never headed.

At Johnstown, in a night game, the Stogies made it two in a row over Johnstown, winning by a score of 17 to 13 in a slugfest.

Cumberland nosed out Clarksburg, 4 to 3, in a close night game at Cumberland. Clarksburg filled the bases in the ninth inning, but with two men out, Noonan lofted to Pierre to end the game and destroy the hopes of the Generals.

Charleroi and Scottdale were not scheduled.

SETS TRACK RECORD

Dick O'Connell, Harvard football and track star, once ran the 220-yard low hurdles event one-tenth of a second faster than the time made in the 220-yard dash in the same meet, which was between Easter and the Springfield College freshmen.

KAUFFMANN BAN HIT BY LOCAL GOLFERS

RULING DRASTIC IS VIEW OF LEADERS

ager of the Allegheny County parks, and the only Pittsburgher who has held a place on the executive committee of the United States Golf Association public links section, while he agreed that the rules called for Kauffmann to be disqualified on technical grounds, pointed out that in the past technical errors of far greater importance had been overlooked when it had been found they were unintentional.

BURKE MAKES STATEMENT

He said:

"Kauffmann, of course, was disqualified according to the rules of the U. S. G. A., but the practice of the national public links championship committee in the past has been to interpret the rules of the game liberally when an unintentional error has been made. This has been the rule because the public links-men come from the far corners of the country to compete for the national title and on many courses they are interpreted differently due to local rules.

"Kauffmann's error was not as important as those overlooked at Buffalo in 1926, when Lester Bolstad, of Minneapolis, captured the crown. Bolstad should have been disqualified when he intentionally improved his lie on the fairway and on the greens time after time. He patted before and behind his ball on fairways with his brassie, and, on the greens, he lined up his ball by pressing heavily on the turf. U. S. G. A. officials paid no heed to a protest made against him."

Continuing Burke said:

"Walsh, of New York, would sit down on the green and wait until the wind subsided before he would putt—and the rules of golf do not permit a man to do that, either, and that was overlooked.

INFRACTIONS COMMON

"George W. Clarkson was refereeing a playoff among five players for thirty-second place in the Buffalo tourney. They reached the first green, and, after four players had holed out, Clarkson conceded a long putt for the fifth man. When he was informed he was breaking a rule of the game, he replaced the ball, apparently nearer the hole, and the player holed out. The last man should have been disqualified for the referee's ignorance of the rules of golf.

"Infractions of the rules of golf in public links championship play have been more common since James D. Standish, Jr., of Detroit, has left the committee—and they apparently have been dealt with in an exceptionally liberal manner. Why they should pick on the defending champion to take such drastic action, in view of past rulings, is beyond me. I repeat Kauffmann was disqualified technically, but it was a rather unnecessary ruling under the circumstances."

"RULES ARE RULES"

George A. Ormiston, of Oakmont, secretary of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association, said:

"It's too bad, of course, but rules are rules, and you can't get away from them. I have seen the same thing happen time and again in national tournaments, for, once a card is posted, it cannot be altered. I remember distinctly that Walter Travis was disqualified in a similar way years ago. It's a tough break, but the rules of golf must be adhered to to the letter."

LEHMAN IS SILENT

Chester H. Lehman, of Westmoreland, former president of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association, declined to make a statement.

"I do not know the entire circumstances under which Mr. Kauffmann was disqualified," he said, "and therefore I cannot make a statement. There may be another side to the story which has not been printed in the newspapers."

J. Bernd Rose, of Allegheny, president of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association; William C. Fownes, Jr., of Oakmont, and J. Frederic Byers, of Allegheny, former national amateur champions and both former presidents of the United States Golf Association, are out of the city and could not be reached for statements. Byers is chairman of the foreign relations committee of the U. S. G. A.

SCHENLEY PARKERS "SORE"

The muny linksmen at Schenley Park were in a furore over the ruling of Gansen Depew, of Buffalo, head of the public links section, and Thomas McMahon, of New York, representing the U. S. G. A. They censured Kenneth C. Witherow, local commissioner on the public links section, for not withdrawing the entire Pittsburgh team from the field and returning immediately to Pittsburgh.

Kauffmann's treatment was characterized as a "raw deal" it being contended that the technical error should have been overlooked.

'DRASTIC'—AL McBRIDE

Al McBride, professional at the Schenley Park links, was indignant when informed of the circumstances surrounding Kauffman's disqualification. McBride, speaking over the long-distance telephone from Bedford Springs, Pa., where he is enjoying a brief vacation, said:

"Under the circumstances, I do not think they should have disqualified Carl. Why should they pick on him to enforce such a drastic ruling on a technical error when many more important errors have been overlooked in the past? Kauffmann must have been quite excited and peeved over shooting such a high score not to have checked his card more carefully—he never would do it intentionally. U. S. G. A. Public Links officials are setting a precedent in enforcing the code so strictly."

WITHEROW REPORTS

Kenneth C. Witherow, U. S. G. A. public links committeeman for this district, who accompanied the local team to Jacksonville, had the following to say over long distance telephone:

"The disqualification of Kauffmann was regretable. Carl violated section 2 of rule 5 and the committee could do nothing but declare him ineligible. However, at a banquet last night, Wesley Casper, of Louisville, Ky., offered a resolution asking that the champion be reinstated. The folks in Jacksonville regret the incident."

Samuel M. Parks, of Highland, a member of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association executive committee, said:

"It was a very unfortunate incident and I was very sorry to hear of it."

KAUFFMANN MAY QUIT

against Kauffmann's score eliminated it from the running.

Kauffmann, who has been the titleholder for three years, penalized himself a stroke because his ball moved as he addressed it. His score was certified and posted, but later he was allowed to eliminate the stroke. Then the question arose that he could not have his score altered without violating a rule of the United States Golf Association. Later the matter was turned over to officials of the U. S. G. A., who announced his disqualification.

Kauffmann had 83 for the first 18 holes, which found Harry T. Givan, 19-year-old Seattle public linker, as the leader in a field of 116 players.

Givan shot a 35-37 for one over par of 72. Bob Wingate, of Jacksonville, and Al Quisley, Chicago veteran, with 74s, followed Givan. Wingate carded a pair of 37s and the Chicago druggist duplicated the feat. Joseph S. Green, of Philadelphia, who was among the last to finish, registered a 75 for next place. Only 23 finished under 80, giving indication that two 80s for the 36 holes will qualify for match play.

Ganson Depew, of Buffalo, member of the executive committee of the United States Golf Association issued the following statement as chairman of the public links section:

"The U. S. G. A. committee regrets that under rule five, section 2, for stroke competition, Carl F. Kauffmann, of Pittsburgh, is declared disqualified. The competitor with whom he played in the qualifying round marked on the score card a four instead of a five on the ninth hole, which was unfortunately not checked by Kauffmann before the card was handed in. The error was wholly unintentional, but it disqualified Kauffmann, as no alteration can under rule five be made on the card after it has been returned."

FAILED TO CHECK

The decision of the committee was reached after a conference among Mr. Depew and T. J. McMahon, of New York, executive secretary of the public links section, and others.

Kauffmann's negligence to check to his score card was largely because he had played such a shaky round, in the opinion of U. S. G. A. officials. He had 83, 10 strokes more than the leader took at the halfway mark.

Other Pittsburgh entries turned in cards low enough to rate them as championship flight prospects. Andy Szwedko had a 41-39—80. Mike Galido and Carl Lunden both were two strokes better, Galido turning in a 38-40—78 and Lunden a 39-39—78.

The leaders in team play: Brooklyn, 311; Louisville, 319; Philadelphia, 327; Portland, 328; Jacksonville, 323; Detroit, 330; Akron 333; New York, 335; Washington, 335; St. Paul, 338; Sanford, 340; St. Louis, 340; San Francisco, 341; Cleveland, 342; Baltimore, 344; Boston, 348, and Dayton, 353.

Kauffmann Ban Upheld by J. F. Burke

James Francis Burke of the Fox Chapel Golf Club, a member of the rules committee of the United States Golf Association and father of the present U. S. G. A. code, in a long-distance telephone conversation this morning from Washington, D. C., regretted that Carl F. Kauffmann, of Pittsburgh, National public links champion for the last three years, was disqualified in the title event at Jacksonville, Fla., yesterday, but emphatically stated that the officials in charge took the proper action.

"There was nothing to do but to disqualify him," Burke said. "At Baltusrol, two years ago, we had to disqualify Frank Dolp, of Portland, Ore., the Western champion, because he failed to note a penalty stroke on his card. After the score had been posted, Dolp himself appeared before the committee and informed them he should have been penalized. The field had noted his score and was out playing against it—and there was nothing to do but to disqualify him. It is not an unusual thing by any means—many others have been disqualified in championship play of the past for the same thing."

STANTON STAR TOPS FIELD

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

Turning in a low gross of 86, which, with a handicap of 14, gave her a low net of 72, Miss Ann Wood, of Stanton Heights, led the field in the first division in the one-day tournament staged under the auspices of the W. G. A. at Pittsburgh Country Club yesterday.

In the second division, Miss Viola Trautman, Country Club, topped the field with 90-17—73. Mrs. E. W. Judy turned in a 100-24—76 for honors in the third flight.

The Pennsylvania Society, Sons of the American Revolution, are competing today at the New Castle Field Club. A party of about 30 Pittsburgh members went up early this morning.

Len B. Keck, of Greensburg, won the Chamber of Commerce of Greensburg tourney staged yesterday at the Hannastown Golf Club. He had a net 67. J. R. Walthour copped second low net with 70, while C. B. Hollingsworth came through to top the low gross field with an 82. David Beatty had 83 to rank second. Thirty-six participated in the tourney.

TREMAIN VICTOR

SPRINGFIELD, Aug. 6.—(AP.)—Lyman Tremain, playing for the home team, was the first to enter the fourth round of the men's annual Eastern States Girls' sport tennis championship at the Ide Home Tennis Club yesterday. He defeated Richard Bond, Swarthmore, 6-3, 4-6, 6-4, in the third round.

ALLISON GAINS THIRD ROUND

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 6.—(AP.)—Wilmer Allison, young Davis Cup player from Austin, Tex., who returned only yesterday from France, reached the third round of the invitation tennis tournament here today by defeating Valentine Gress, New York, 7-9, 6-1, 8-6.

Allison drew a bye in the first round.

Playing his first match in the United States in many months, Bill Tilden, who also returned from abroad less than 24 hours ago, began play in singles by defeating Frank Bonneau, New York, 6-4, 6-1. Tilden had been expected to play only in doubles, but was added to the singles field at his special request. Having drawn a first round bye his victory over Bonneau carried him into the third round.

SHADE VICTOR

BOSTON, Aug. 6.—(AP.)—Dave Shade, veteran Los Angeles middleweight, gave Joe Anderson, of Covington, Ky., a severe trouncing in the Boston Gardens feature 10-round bout here last night at Braves Field. Dave's sizzling two-fisted attack to the head and body gave him nine of the rounds.

MINORS SET FOR WAR

INTERNATIONAL, COAST, A. A. IN LINE

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—(AP.)—Confronted with a boycott threat by the major leagues over the draft question, representatives of the American Association, Pacific Coast and International leagues yesterday began formation of a "triple entente" to protect their interests.

A committee of three, headed by Walter E. Hapgood, general manager of the Montreal club of the International League, was appointed to make recommendations for a united front in the draft and other problems with other minor league loops and to make a report at a special conference at Montreal during the first week in December, when the National Association meets and when the Major League boycott becomes effective.

TO IGNORE MAJORS

Other members of the committee were Charles Graham, vice president of the San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast League, and Oscar J. Smith, president of the Toledo club of the American Association.

The three leagues, Hapgood said, have decided to ignore the ultimatum of the majors that they submit to some acceptable draft agreement or be boycotted on and after December 1, 1930.

"We intend to stick to the agreement we made in Kansas City in 1921 in which it was agreed that no league not in sympathy with the draft was compelled to accept it," he said. "If the major leagues want to severe relations with us over the draft, why we can't help it. We plan to ignore the ultimatum if that is what it amounts to. That question, however, was not taken up today. The Leagues have decided that issue separately."

BAINARD HOPEFUL

President Ernest Barnard, of the American League, said he believed the difficulty would be ironed out satisfactorily by December 1 but that the majors were determined the draft principle be accepted.

In addition to the "Big Three" the Western and Three Eye Leagues have been exempt from the draft since the Kansas City agreement. They were expected to ignore the threat also.

SEEDED GIRL STARS WIN

EASTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 6. (AP.)—Play once more followed form in the Maidstone Club's invitation tennis tournament yesterday with not one upset to mark the day.

Sarah Palfrey, of Brookline, Mass., apparently had recovered from the scare she received Monday when she nearly was beaten by Clara Zinke, of Cincinnati, eliminated Florence Le Boutillier, 6-0, 6-3.

Marjorie Morrill, Dedham, Mass., eleventh ranking player, defeated Virginia Rice, Boston, thirteenth in the national list, 6-3, 6-2. Penelope Anderson, Richmond, Va., trounced Mercedes Matlowe, Los Angeles, in love sets, and Virginia Hilleary, Philadelphia, had little more trouble with Olivia Stokes, whom she defeated 6-2, 6-1.

PITCHER TALLEY

Sport Vignettes

What's all of this talk about Young America deserting the so-called National Pastime, baseball? . . . Say it ain't so, Joe; say it ain't so . . . Despite all of those Tom Thumb golf courses, driving ranges, swimming pools, tennis courts, automobiles, radio and other diversions, there still is an inherent love for baseball in the breast of every normal American boy . . . The question is whether or not Organized Baseball is doing its part to foster this love and encourage its growth . . . True, it is sponsoring an annual American Legion junior tournament, but that isn't getting the kids out in the bleachers for the small sum of two bits, as in ye olden days, when there was no question about baseball's hold on the young . . . In a few scattered towns they have kid days and knothole gangs and give the youngsters a free look at the diamond greats, but even there things aren't what they used to be . . . All of which works back around to the fact that the kids still are born with a love for the game that merely needs cultivating, which it is not getting . . . If you doubt it, cast your eyes upon the accompanying picture . . . It depicts 4-year-old Martin Stephen Sheller showing Paul Waner, of the Pirates, how to field 'em in a big glove, before the Bucs' exhibition game at Ellwood City the other day . . . You wouldn't want to catch 'em or start 'em in any younger than young Martin . . . And look at the serious expression on his face as he tells Big Poison how the game should be played. . . . And another thing about this baseball business; where does President Hickey, of the American Association, get off telling the players it's all right for them to fight among themselves and take socks at one another, but to lay off the umpires? . . . Just another example of how they're taking all of the fun out of the game. . . . Billy (Muscle) Scholes, North Side lightweight boxer, who now is on the trail of Andy Andrucci, Phil Goldstein, Johnny Smackey and others, estimates he walks and runs from 16 to 18 miles a day while working his milk route on Troy Hill . . . He begins his daily round at 2 a. m., and when he fights goes almost direct from the arena to work . . . Buck Crouse, former middleweight ring star, who has been rusticating at St. Vincent's, Beatty, Pa., since last March, sends back word to be remembered to his friends and says he'll be back home by the end of this month . . . Major league scouts have their eyes on Frank Doljack, of the Wheeling Stogies, who is leading the Mid-Atlantic League in batting in the latest averages with a mark of .404 for 73 games . . . He is regarded as the leading outfielder of the circuit, and, in addition to being a speedy fly-chaser, has a powerful throwing arm.—HARRY KECK.

BUCS PLEASED OVER TRADE WITH PHILS

with the Quakers in Cincinnati on the following day.

Every member of the Pittsburgh club will see Brick leave with big regrets. Fred's sunny disposition and general good nature made him a heavy favorite with everybody on the club. He was unfortunate in running into an outfield combination that defied his best talents. Yet his bat turned many a ball game for the Pirates since he first came here back in 1926.

STILL YOUNGSTER

Brickell is only 22 after all his major league service. Southern started later in the professional game and is 26.

The Pirates yesterday took a pasting from the Charleroi club of the Mid-Atlantic League. Manager Ens had quite a few understudies in the battle, yet the skill of the minor leaguers could not be denied. The score of the contest was 10 to 4.

It was a big day in the neighborhood town. The victory of the home players added much to the joy of the Charleroi folks.

Stricklin, Nork and Bashore gave the fans a treat by clouting out homers. Sankey struck a round-tripper for the Pirates.

Vic Latriam held the Buccos to nine hits. Leon Chagnon had so much stuff he whiffed nine of the Governors, yet they were able to collect 11 safeties. The score:

YANKEES WIN IN CANADA

LONDON, Ont., Aug. 6.—(AP.)—Paced by the defending champion, Eddie Held, of Great Neck, N. Y., seven players from the United States advanced to the second round of match play in the Canadian amateur golf championship yesterday.

Finding the 36-hole matches that mark the Canadian titular event much to their liking, the Americans lost only two of the contingent of nine who made the grade in the 36-hole qualifying round yesterday.

Joining Held in the second round were Francis W. Ryan, of Detroit, and J. Raymond Ferguson, of Philadelphia, who tied for the medal in the qualifying round; J. Wood Platt, of Philadelphia; Fred J. Wright, of Newton, Mass.; S. S. Merritt, of Nobla, Pa., and Frank Connolly, of Dearborn, Mich.

The nine Canadian survivors included C. Ross Somerville, of London, Ont.; Nicol Thompson, Jr., of Toronto; W. D. Taylor, Carrol M. Stuart, and J. A. Cameron, of Montreal; Gordon Taylor, Jr., Fred G. Hoblitzel, and Eric Russell, of Toronto, and Alex Weir, of Winnipeg.

Hazeltine Scores Upset in Tourney

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 6.—(INS.)—Billy Hazeltine, 20-year-old Lansdowne youth, held the limelight today in the fifth annual Eastern States clay court tennis championships at the Idle Hour Club courts.

He conquered Harold E. Lane, seeded fifth in the meet, in three torrid sets, 1-6, 6-4, 6-2, in the fourth round to create the first and most startling upset of the present tourney. Based on his play yesterday observers predicted Hazeltine will go far in this tournament. He meets High Lefler, North Carolina, this afternoon.

Samuel Gilpin, of Merion, the defending titlist, defeated Dr. Louis Schwartz, of New York, in straight sets, 6-0, 6-2. He faces William Custer today and should win handily.

Other winners included: Harry Plymire, Leland Stanford, who trounced Bernard Friedman, West Philadelphia High, 6-1, 6-4; Harold Colborn, Cynwyd, reached the fourth round by defeating C. B. Lair, Ursinus College.

BANGOR ROAD'S PROSPECTS GOOD

Earnings Warrant Higher Dividend, But Action May Be Delayed Until Fall

BOSTON, Aug. 6.—Bangor and Aroostook Railroad directors are scheduled to meet for dividend action in the third week in August, which is somewhat later than the date on which the dividend payable October 1 was declared last summer and in 1928.

Because of fine showing of this year's earnings to date and the consistently good record of this road over a period of years, the matter of an increase in the common dividend from the present $3.50 rate may receive consideration, although general business conditions would appear to militate against an increase at this time. Directors may prefer to get a more accurate line on the outcome of this year's potato crop than is at present obtainable before committing the road to larger dividend payments.

CROP OUTLOOK FAIR

In general the crop is said to look fairly promising at present and the area is 5 per cent to 10 per cent larger than that which produced the big 1929 crop, which sold for high prices. But much could happen in the way of deterioration in the next few weeks.

Bangor and Aroostook's earnings for the first half of 1930 were at a record rate, due both to large potato shipments and to a generally good freight movement. The result was that it earned nearly as much net income in the first half of this year as in the whole of 1929. Surplus after charges for the period was $1,360,056, against $916,549 for the corresponding period last year, an increase of $383,507, or 41.8 per cent. This compared with surplus after charges of $1,398,432 for the full year 1929.

FIRST HALF GROSS UP

Bangor and Aroostook was one of the few roads in the country to increase its gross earnings in the first half of this year over 1929, the gain being $742,499, or 17.5 per cent. Balance earned on 141,792 shares of common stock in the first half of this year was $8.30 a share, against $5.60 figured on a similar amount of stock for the first half of 1929. Earnings in all of 1929 were equivalent to $8.14 a share figured on this amount of stock, while 1928 earnings were equal to $6.94 a share on 106,560 shares of common.

Bangor and Aroostook directors have pursued a conservative policy with respect to dividends, but a moderate increase in the rate to say a $4 basis would seem justified by results and the record over a period of years.

Extracts Tar From Sands of Alberta

EDMONTON, Aug. 6.—Experiments in extraction of tar from the bituminous sands of the McMurray area, Northern Alberta, has resulted in 95 per cent pure tar being obtained from the sands. Five barrels of tar, claimed to be as pure as any produced from any other known source, were extracted from five tons of Alberta bituminous sand. The process used is the discovery of Dr. K. A. Clark of the University of Alberta, who has been working on the problem for the past 10 years.

Sperry Flour Co. Reduces Prices

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 6.—Sperry Flour Company, General Mills subsidiary, has reduced prices 20 cents on family grades of flour. The new price for Drifted Snow will be $6.20 for two 98s, and for Gold Medal, $6.50 for two 98s.

The new price, the first reduction since July 16, brings flour to the lowest price for these grades in the past 15 years. The decline in the wheat market occasioned the reduction.

Soundness of Finance Companies Assured

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

TIME PAYMENT FINANCING has stood the test of an industrial depression. During the period of rapid growth in the use of this method of financing the retail sale of automobiles, washing machines and vacuum cleaners, economists frequently questioned the ability of the finance companies to stand a slump in employment. These fears have been shown to be groundless where there is sufficient diversification of risk and the management is capable.

Commercial Investment Trust Corporation, exceeded in size in its field only by the General Motors Acceptance Corporation, did a smaller volume of business in the first half of 1930 than in the corresponding period of 1929 but earned more money. While the sales of products by the companies which are customers of this organization have declined, the profits from the financing of installment sales have been increased.

Losses Written Off

THE NET VOLUME of bills and accounts purchased during the first six months of the year amounted to $207,204,728. This compared with $265,106,369 in the first six months of 1929 and with $129,865,493 in the first half of 1928. All determinable losses have been written off. Reserves considered adequate to protect the corporation against any possible future losses have been set up.

Net profit for the half year, after all charges, amounted to $4,738,683 compared with $4,042,116 last year and $2,246,590 in the first half of 1928. After deducting dividends on the first preferred stock and the serial preference stock, this was equivalent to $1.53 a share on the average number of shares of common stock outstanding during the period. It compared with $2.24 a share on the average number of shares outstanding during the corresponding period of 1929, calculated on the basis of the split-up of 2½ shares for one in October, 1929, and with $1.66 a share during the corresponding period of 1928, calculated on the same basis.

Collections Satisfactory

PRESIDENT HENRY ITTLESON makes the following report to stockholders:

"The bulk of the corporation's receivables at June 30, 1930 consisted of secured obligations arising out of the completed sale of labor saving devices, machinery, household utilities, automobiles and other durable, marketable commodities. The larger part of the receivables which were outstanding at the beginning of the year have matured and been paid and most of those outstanding at June 30, 1930 were acquired during the preceding six months. Collections have been satisfactory. All uncollectable receivables have been charged off in the first six months of 1930. While the ratio of these charge-offs has been somewhat above normal, it has not been excessive, as is shown by the substantial net profit for the six months in excess of all dividend requirements for the period and the maintenance of reserves for future possible losses and contingencies in accordance with the corporation's usual conservative standards. These reserves as of June 30, 1930, represented 1.86 per cent of the outstanding receivables as compared with 1.73 per cent at December 31, 1929."

Auto Sales Decline

DURING THE PAST six months, Mr. Ittleson reports, purchases of automobile paper have decreased in line with the general business recession. However, purchases of industrial receivables have increased and although the total purchases have decreased, it nevertheless proves the soundness of the policy established by the corporation some years ago of diversifying its activities and increasing the number of the industries that it serves. Mr. Ittleson adds that this policy will be continued.

Shares Drift Lower — Rustless Iron Firm

STOCKS LOWER AS TRADING DWINDLES

Grain Market Buoyant While Steel, Other Shares Sag Point or More

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—(AP.)—The drought appeared to have injured the bull pasturage in today's stock market, and the mid-week business statistics provided no relief.

Leading shares sagged 2 to 4 points or more as trading remained apathetic. Some market operators were said to have found the market too sluggish for successful trading and to have suspended activity.

The grain markets were again buoyant, and while some stock market interests endeavored to interpret the breaking of the depression in the wheat and corn markets bullishly, the stock market as a whole displayed considerable nervousness as to the effects of the extensive crop damage on autumn business prospects.

STEEL DISAPPOINTS

The weekly steel trade reviews were disappointing. Iron Age stated that steel mill operations had dropped to 56 per cent of capacity, after holding at 56 for four weeks. This was contrary to the preliminary estimates yesterday, indicating slight improvement. "Steel," however, said that United States Steel had increased operations from 63 to 64 per cent of capacity, and that the entire industry was between 55 and 60 per cent.

Neither publication found much cheer in the immediate outlook. Iron Age said the opinion still prevailed that a seasonal upturn would appear in a month or two. Steel, however, said that failure of specifications to respond to resumption of automotive manufacturing, alarm over possible damage to public buying by the drought and the most drastic curtailment of the pig iron production in recent years, "have vitiated much of the hope entertained for an improved iron and steel situation in the early fall."

Freight car-loadings for the fourth week of July were reported as nearly 9,000 cars under the previous week, and again at the lowest level for the period in eight years. P. W. Dodge Corporation's report of total building contracts east of the Rockies for July showed a drop of 44 per cent from July, 1929.

LOOK FOR UPTURN

Some of these statistics were regarded as representing water under the mill, and Wall street believes that it may be a little early to look for a marked seasonal upturn in steel operations, but the psychological influences seriously hampered the bull cause. In the meantime, a fair amount of good investment buying continued to flow into the market on recessions, and banking circles in general did not regard the outlook as justifying deep pessimism. Bankers said business has been paying off its borrowings in large volume, and putting itself on sound footing.

Such issues as U. S. Steel, American Can, du Pont, Rock Island, Westinghouse Electric and Atchison lost 2 points or more. Atchison after selling up 4 in the morning. American Telephone, Union Pacific, Eastman, Allied Chemical, American Water Works, American Tobacco B and Case lost 4 or more. Diamond Match, recently a buoyant feature, tumbled more than 8. There were a few firm spots during the earlier hours of trading. Woolworth rising 2 and Davison Chemical 3 points.

Call money renewed at 2½ per cent for the first time since July 15, but easier money is expected within a few days.

DuPont - Warner Deal Pending

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—(AP.)—H. M. Warner, president of Warner Brothers Pictures, returning from Europe today, declined to make any statement as to his company's business or plans.

Directors meet late tomorrow for action on the quarterly dividend, and unconfirmable Wall street rumors say that the cash payment will be reduced or passed owing to the necessity of conserving funds. Earnings during the summer months are understood to have fallen below expectations, causing the company a little embarrassment, because of recent rapid expansion. It is understood that the dividend may be paid in stock, and a bond issue be arranged.

Further unconfirmable reports have it that John J. Raskob, who has been heavily interested in the company, may be made chairman of the board, placing the Du Pont interests in close touch with the management of the company. The Du Ponts are said to be interested in Warner Brothers as an outlet for their film business.

Mr. Warner, who spent six weeks in Europe, said that American motion picture producers were doing a good business abroad.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—(AP.)—The curb market slumbered peacefully on today, making price changes that were almost entirely fractional. The trend was slightly downward, but the move was insignificant in view of the light trading.

Ford of England monopolized the ticker tape on a resumption of the activity that started yesterday. The stock sold off a trifle on early realizing, but then firmed up and shaded over the Tuesday close. There are outstanding 7,000,000 shares of £1 sterling par value.

Call money renewed on the curb at 3 per cent.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

MACHINE TRADE UPTURN DUE

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Machine-tool and machinery markets throughout the country continue to suffer from a prolonged period of doldrums, but if hopeful predictions now being voiced in increasing volume in machinery centers are a true gage of actual conditions, the industry is due for a definite upturn about Labor Day and the period following election time, American Machinist reports. An occasional center now reports the reopening of inquiries more than a year old, with the possibility of sales when the looked-for improvement sets in.

Business in the New York district is still on a restricted basis, while Chicago reports inquiries are picking up. Dullness in the Cincinnati area is attributed by dealers to the intense heat, although a few inquiries are coming in.

Detroit's automobile builders, in virtual control of the machine-tool situation there, seem to be passing on the public's indifference to the tool sellers. Southern prospects are drying up and there is some evidence of a surplus in used tools.

Oil Code Signers Now Total 15,800

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—American Petroleum Institute directors have approved a plan under which signers of the national petroleum code of marketing ethics will display metal signs informing the public of such action and stating that they will conduct their business in accordance with the code's provisions.

Approximately 15,800 separate units marketing refined petroleum products signed the code and sent copies to the Federal Trade Commission, Washington, between August 31, 1929, and July 28, this year, according to W. R. Boyd, Jr., executive vice president of the institute.

Radio Production Gains In Canada

OTTAWA, Aug. 6.—Production of complete radio sets, parts and batteries in Canada during 1929 totaled in value $20,966,137, an increase of 63 per cent over the 1928 total, according to preliminary statement issued by Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Survey was based on returns from manufacturers and did not include the large number of small custom workers who assemble or build to order.

Nebraska Corn Hurt One-Third By Heat

LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 6.—State and federal agricultural statisticians said Nebraska corn has been injured fully one-third by the drouth, with heaviest damage in Eastern Nebraska.

CANADA POWER SITE FOUND

VANCOUVER, Aug. 6.—The greatest water powers in Canada have been revealed along the coast of British Columbia, north of Vancouver, by survey of government engineers made this summer. Preliminary reports to the government indicate that in addition to the noted Taseko-Chilko-Homathko power site, with a possible development of 1,200,000 horsepower, two other sources of hydro power have been discovered, bringing possible development of the coast district upon to 3,000,000 horsepower.

The recently discovered power sites are at Takesa Lake and Eutsuk Lake. By turning the waters of these lakes westward to the sea instead of eastward into the Fraser River, engineers believe 1,800,000 horsepower can be developed. The third project calls for diversion of the Chilko waters westward to the sea by way of the Homathka River.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—(AP.)—Big buying hoisted prices both for wheat and corn early today, with corn reaching a new high-price record for the season. Wheat, however, advanced faster than corn, and was even more active, influenced by Canadian reports of severe damage by black rust. The stimulus to buy grain, though, came from widely circulated assertions by trade authorities, that for all practical purposes a large part of the corn crop is beyond material recovery from drought. Opening ⅛-1⅛c up, wheat later showed gains of more than 3½ cents a bushel compared with last night. Corn also started at ⅛-1⅛ cents rise and continued irregularly.

Violent upturns in grain prices today contrasted with recent general smashing of low-price records. Instead, wheat today, as well as corn and oats, quickly outdid the season's previous top quotations. A special reason adding to the upward momentum of the wheat market was word that wheat in many sections of Saskatchewan province, Canada, is too badly rusted to pay for the cost of harvesting. Thousands of acres were reported as ruined by rust.

Increasing the buying fever both in the wheat pit and in corn was a statement which the official weekly crop report made today that the corn crop has suffered further and marked deterioration from drought, with the damage extending into all grain growing states. The official report said also that deterioration was at an "alarming rate," and confirmed that much of the crop is beyond hope. Under such circumstances, all deliveries of corn today surpassed the season's highest prices heretofore and mounted at one stage to about 13 cents a bushel or more above values current last week.

Oats, sympathizing with corn and wheat, jumped rapidly. Provisions also soared with grain.

CAPITAL GAIN USE HELD UNSOUND

Spending of Surplus Creates False Inflation; Old Conundrum Revived

By MERRYLE RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—The modern version of the conundrum about which came first, the chicken or the egg, is couched in financial terms. The question is, did the collapse of prosperity cause the bear market, or did the bear market bring the end of prosperity.

The issue is precipitated anew by an economist—Arno H. Johnson, who asserts in the Annalist:

Mr. Rukeyser

"The most important factor which really has had an effect on business in these past few months, and which there is every reason to believe will continue to affect business for some time to come, is the withdrawal of the speculative profits which during the past few years have added a margin to the spendable surplus of the income of many consumers."

PROFIT SPENDING

"This supplement to the spendable surplus has increased in amazing proportions during the past 10 years, over which we have had a period of increasing stock prices as well as real estate prices. The failure of the American consumer to receive this year this speculative margin of surplus over regular earnings has resulted in a decrease in the number of his spendable dollars, far beyond any shrinkage shown by decreased wages. This shrinkage affects a far wider group than that which sustained actual speculative money losses from the stock market decline."

Unquestionably, there is truth in this contention that consumption has failed to receive this year the extra stimulus which came from an urge to spend speculative profits. But the fact that Americans were using such capital gains as income was evidence of an unsound economic situation.

Some financiers saw the danger in advance. For example, Albert H. Wiggin, chairman of the Chase National Bank, in his annual report for 1928, warned against the tendency to use capital gains for purchasing power. Such a tendency represented a subtly insidious form of inflation which was gradually piling up troubles. The same unhealthy mental attitude gave investment trust managers the idea that they could regularly pay dividends out of capital gains instead of out of income received from securities held in portfolios.

U. S. BUREAU WRONG

The Bureau of Internal Revenue is partly responsible for such faulty economic thinking. In connection with taxes, it confuses capital gains with income. The British tax collectors do not succumb to the same economic fallacy, but distinguish between income and capital gains. The tendency of American consumers to use capital gains, or speculative profits, as purchasing power gave false foundation to business. The effect is to overboom business during dull markets and to overdepress it during bear markets. From the individual standpoint, the danger lies in the fact that out of speculative profits in good times reserves should be set up against subsequent depreciation.

But as for which came first, the depression or the bear market, the chronological fact is that business attained its peak in June, 1929, and selected stock averages did not soar to the summit until Labor Day—some two months later. The change of mind which broke the bull market was a gradual realization that the spectacle of continuous prosperity had been interrupted. The change in business came first, but since then trade and speculation have interacted on each other.

As for the future, investors will be tempted in time to buy stocks for two motives. First, because of the prospects for increased corporate profits when trade recovers. And, secondly, because under prevailing low interest rates, a stipulated dividend in dollars is subject to capitalization at a higher figure.

ANSWER TO HAHN

Lew Hahn, president of the Hahn Department Stores, was recently quoted as advocating lower priced merchandise in department stores to conform to the shrunken income of customers. W. S., a reader of this column writes:

"In answer to Mr. Hahn, I must disagree with his statement of the need of creating merchandise to meet a man's pocketbook. I would create a condition to make the pocketbook meet the cost of merchandise, and put the people in a position where they will be earning enough to pay the cost of good merchandise. Small prices mean small wages; small wages give no outlet for production.

"Reduce the hours of production one hour a day and use an extra man to every seven and a job for everyone that wants to work. Fair wages for a fair day's work and fair prices for fair valued merchandise."

The difference lies in the fact that Mr. Hahn spoke as a practical merchandiser, and W. S. approaches the subject in the spirit of social reform.

Aircraft Output For Half Year Totals 1,684

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The American Airplane output for the first six months of 1930 amounted to 1,684 machines, of which 1,325 went into civilian use and 159 were taken over by the Army and Navy.

Export trade took 148 planes. In making public the figures on the basis of licenses issued, the commerce department explained that comparable figures with previous years was unavailable because the license system was not in operation until last year.

An analysis of the types of flying machines made this year shows almost an equal demand for monoplane and biplane craft, there being 562 of the former and 598 of the latter manufactured. More than half of the monoplanes were cabin cruiser types while most of the biplanes were amphibians.

Quietness, Narrow Swings Indicate Accumulation By Speculators

Spells of quietness and narrow swings in the stock market are traditionally periods of accumulation when speculative interests are supposed to be picking up lines of stock with the expectation of disposing of them on the succeeding upswing. Some observers professed to see signs of accumulation in the present market. Indeed, better stocks do seem to have been meeting quiet but steady demand of late. The bearishly inclined however point out that the dull period which followed the April and May decline also was hailed as an accumulative area and the market came out of that period on the toboggan.

Copper and other metal stocks have offered solid resistance to what little selling has come into that group of late. Firmness of the metal shares reflects the steadier price situation in the metal markets. Lead prices actually have advanced after a long decline and copper metal has been steady for sometime at the 11-cent level. There was heavy buying of copper for both foreign and domestic account in July, with indications that the July statistics will show improvement. The disposition now is to look for the next move in copper metal prices to be upward, for rarely has the price remained as low as it is at present for any extended time.

Since stocks touched the top of the recovery from the June lows around July 18, the market has been swinging in about a 10-point range, measured by standard market averages. Each time it reached the upper limit on that zone it has reacted, only to run into a period of dullness which has discouraged aggressive operations for the decline. For the fourth time yesterday the market approached the upper level and United States Steel actually went through its former resistance point by a small fraction. It met further offerings at the top, but turned extremely dull on the downside, leaving the bulls with hope that another rush might succeed in carrying it through.

The contest between professional traders is becoming interesting. One group continues bearish and supplies the market whenever stocks are moved forward. Another group was responsible for the advances last month and is believed to be in a position to support stocks if they are driven downward. It is contended that some of the members of the bull pool were aligned with the bears only a few months ago, but turned to the optimistic side early in July. Naturally, there is some antagonism between the two groups.

Reports of new gold fields do not as a rule excite Wall Street, but particular interest was shown in the news that there is a full sized gold rush on to a newly discovered field in Australia. Economists have pointed out for some time that an unexpected find of new gold might bolster up the prosperity of the world. Meanwhile the continued flow of gold from this country to France is arousing considerable argument both here and in London.

Review of J. Henry Schroeder's in London says: "If France continues to follow the line she has lately pursued in the bullion market and does not invest in long term foreign loans she will seriously endanger the working of the gold standard, which is already the object of much emphatic criticism. The business world will not long tolerate domination of the standard which inflicts depression on the world owing to its faulty working by some of those who handle it. The European debt to America is payable in gold, and France by sterilizing gold and so making it scarce and artificially increasing its buying power puts benefit into America's pocket, whose financial domination is so much dreaded in Europe."

HOW'S BUSINESS?

ACTUAL FACTS ON CONDITIONS TODAY

By FRELING FOSTER

Business Failures NOT Record-Breaking

The number of business failures in the United States during the first half of 1930 are compared with those in the corresponding periods of the past nine years. The figures are based on the insolvencies among the 2,100,000 industrial, commercial and professional concerns which require credit ratings, and exclude banks. Source: R. G. Dun & Company.

In the first half of 1922 there were 675 failures per 100,000 concerns. In 1930 there were 626. From 1923 through 1928, the average yearly increase in insolvencies was 5.8%. Excluding 1929, 1930 is only 7.4% over 1928. Note the large increase in 1922, after the 1921 depression. The 1930 bar would look like that if we were in a serious depression now.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—(AP)—The bond market was dull and featureless today. Apathy towards fixed income securities extended to all sections of the list on the New York Stock Exchange. The price movement was narrowly upward.

Apparently the market was resting after its spurt yesterday when the rally in rails bonds lifted the general average to a new high mark for the year.

To avoid the congestion which developed in 1927 when syndicates held prices of new issues at offering figures while they were being distributed, several large bond houses in Wall street are understood to have abandoned the practice of "price pegging."

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—(AP)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and third-seconds of dollars):

DAILY TRUE STORY

'Marmaduke'

Probably some 17,000 summer resorts in our broad and fair land have a place, where summer boarders are more or less taken in, that is named "The Elms."

The hamlet of Cogassett was one of the 17,000, but it is a safe bet that in none of the remaining 16,999 resorts was there such a delightfully romantic place as "The Elms" in Cogassett.

Uncle Ben Holton and his wife, Aunt Lavina, owned and managed the summer hotel, aided by a capable staff of servants. Uncle Ben and Aunt Lavina were almost redolent of romance, if one might express it that way. They adored romance and they abetted it whenever possible.

Silver Lake spread its yellow pebbly beach close to the front lawn of the hotel. At the right was a towering granite cliff with a path leading up and wild flowers along the way. At the left a point of land jutted into the limpid waters of the lake, the point being beautified by a grove of ancient beeches upon the boles of which many a generation of lovers had cut their initials.

In fact, Uncle Ben could point out a dozen trees bearing the initials of lovers and also the initials of others lovers, one of same being an offspring of the first mentioned lovers. One tree bore the incised initials of three generations of lovers.

Then, of course, there were the canoes, the broad verandas with conveniently secluded nooks, the hammocks and swings and lawn bowers, and under-shrub benches.

Sunsets glowed and moonlight silvered the water ripples and stars twinkled.

On Vacation

Stan Warner came to "The Elms" for a few weeks' rest. Stan planned towering skyscrapers and acre-wide manufacturing plants and such things.

He needed rest and quiet and he especially needed to go to some place where no building higher than two and a half stories could be found or seen or mentioned.

He came early and only a few people were there, mostly silver-haired couples who had been coming here for years—some had been coming here when Uncle Ben Holton's father owned the place.

And so Stan would wander down to the pebbly beach and try to rest, but he was constantly planning how a great bridge could be built from the cliff to a tower on Beech Point, or how a Spanish-Moorish hotel of 15 stories could be built on the point.

He couldn't seem to get cement and bricks, girders and limestone blocks out of his mind. He knew that he should occupy his thoughts with something as light and fleecy as the white clouds or the milk-weed down, or the balm of gilead tree fluff. It didn't work. He dreamed of skyscrapers overtopping the highest, or he dreamed of traffic tunnels of hundred-unit manufacturing plants—until "Cornie" arrived.

Cornelia Dresdon was the sort of a girl one just naturally called "Cornie" almost from the start.

Stan Warner was introduced to her at the noontime luncheon and by three that afternoon he was sitting by the canoe float with her, calling her "Cornie."

Cornelia was more than "cute," she was fluffy and gay and sweet and at the same time she impressed one with having good common sense and an excellent education.

She wasn't at all like Morna Gormley, who seriously advised a local farmer to never cut his hay in hot July, but wait until winter time when it was cooler.

Stan Warner forgot about towering skyscrapers the very first night Cornie arrived.

The second night he not only forgot about architecture but he thought constantly of Cornie.

He had been swimming with her, also canoeing, fishing and searching through the lower meadows for India pinks, botanically known as swamp orchids.

Cornie Wins

After dinner he sat in a corner of the veranda and played honeymoon bridge with her, 20 games, the wager being a carton of cigarets against two pounds of chocolate almonds. Cornie doted on chocolate almonds. She won.

Stan saw to it that she did, and so cleverly that she never suspected.

"Looks to me, Lavina," Uncle Ben said as they were getting ready to retire, "'s though that Warner feller and Cornie would be cuttin' their 'nitials on one of our beeches before long."

Cornie had vacationed at "The Elms" for seven summers and was greatly beloved by the old couple. But never before had she taken such interest in any man there.

"Well, let's hope so—Cornie's a right down sweet girl and love comes where it's sent."

"It's bein' sent to her, I'm a bettin' you."

Aunt Lavina wouldn't bet, she merely said, "Hang your coat over the back of the chair so's it won't wrinkle." She had been saying that to him for 41 years.

Cornie knew a whole lot about wild flowers, but she wasn't goofy about them. Cornie painted pictures of them, in bunches and in parts, dissected. The paintings being used for colored plates in expensive works on botany, and Cornie being well paid for the work.

Stan Warner admitted that he knew there were several kinds of "posies," as he called them, but he didn't think there was a good living in painting them.

Cornie explained that there were, within a radius of a few miles of them, some four hundred varieties of wild flowers.

Then, across the lake where a brook came in and they caught trout, Stan found a clay bed. He examined it, he made a slab and put it in the coals after they had broiled their trout, and he explained why it wasn't quite the right quality for making tiles. It had to do with so many pounds pressure to the square inch.

Cornie was surprised. She thought they just got "things" together and built a building. She didn't imagine that they worked mathematics into it. She thought Stan must be awfully clever. She was calling him "Stan" by then.

At the end of two weeks they had wandered down on Beech Point where Stan had carved a large, shapely heart on the bole of a giant beech, carved lacy ivy vines about it and inside had made two neat monograms out of S. W. and C. D. It was much the neatest carving to be found there.

Stan Is Puzzled

Pete Turner, who was blackberrying, saw the new carving and told Uncle Ben and Aunt Lavina all about how grand it was.

"I told you," Lavina said.

"Well, practically every young couple that's carved their 'nitials down there in th' past 40 years has gone and got married," he said.

"To each other," Aunt Lavina added.

Stan Warner knew by this time that he was in love with Cornie. He didn't believe that he could ever take interest in another skyscraper unless Cornie became his wife.

He thought Cornie loved him, but he wasn't so sure. It worried him. He didn't know that man, the poor animal, cannot hide his love, but that a girl can always hide it if she doesn't care to have it known.

Stan hoped.

But one thing troubled him. This was "Marmaduke."

Who the devil this chap Marmaduke was he hadn't the slightest idea. He hoped Marmaduke wouldn't drop dead because he wasn't that sort of a mean chap, but he did hope Marmaduke would move to Korea or Hindustan or Siam or some such distant place and never come back.

What worried him most of all was the fact that Cornie never mentioned Marmaduke. If only she had spoken about him, it might have been different. If she had said, "My friend Marmaduke," or something like that. But the secrecy about him worried Stan.

It hinted at a secret engagement. Perhaps, Stan thought, she had an engagement ring on a chain or ribbon around her neck and—well, wherever girls kept secret engagement rings.

Stan was no snooper, but he accidentally saw a post card sent by Cornie to her aunt. There was a line:

"Tell Marmaduke I send love and kisses."

Stan wanted her love and kisses, and it worried him.

"Tell Marmaduke to be a good boy and his Cornie will soon be back."

Stan muttered some profanities about Marmaduke.

But still he went here and there with Cornie and she was as sweet and wonderful as possible. The night he sat out under the wisteria arbor with her and kissed her, she didn't seem to object at all.

Perhaps, if he became a perfect Romeo, he could make her forget her Marmaduke. He decided to try.

Proposes

Cornie didn't object.

She accepted the books, the cigaret case and other gifts with sincere thanks and gave him nice little kisses for his kindness.

Stan wanted to propose.

Several times he almost did, but he lacked courage.

On the little office desk one morning he saw one of her postcards with other mail. He leaned against the desk, lighted a cigaret and unblushingly read:

"Dear Auntie: Try and keep dear Marmaduke from getting too lonesome. Tell him I'll be back to him in another week."

It spoiled Stan's whole day. He went away by himself. But after dinner he couldn't very well stay away from the weekly dance.

And he couldn't refuse to dance with Cornie.

He took her right down to the pebbly beach, where the moon made a path across the water to their feet.

"Cornie," Stan said, "I want you—I want to marry you. I'm sorry that you have another lover, but don't you think this chap Marmaduke could stand it if you didn't marry him and did marry me?"

"Marmaduke? Who told you about him, Stan?"

"I—I accidentally saw some postcards."

Cornie was silent. Stan suddenly asked: "Are you crying, darling?"

"No," she said, in a muffled tone, "I'm laughing. I don't think Marmaduke would mind much if I married you instead of him, seeing that Marmaduke is a great big St. Bernard dog I've had for seven years and—"

But a girl can't talk plainly when a man grabs her and kisses her right on the mouth—and what girl wants to talk if it's the right man?

Stan was the right man.

Things have come to a pretty pass. The town marshal received word that a car loaded with bank bandits might come through the village and he was watching strange cars carefully. When a car answering the description given him came through, he stopped the car and asked the passengers if they were bank bandits. "No," they chorused indignantly. "Now you wait here," the marshal admonished them, "until I put in a long distance call to find out for sure." A call verified his suspicions, but when he returned to the street his bandits had given him the air. His only alibi was, "They lied to me."

Q. AND A. DEPARTMENT

Hello Kid:

I am 17 and have been going with fellows two years. I neck and smoke, but do not drink anything really bad. Mother thinks I am wrong. Don't you think she is unreasonable?

—Little Lady.

Ans.—Well now, of course, it is only natural for a mother to want that her daughter should learn how to behave herself in civilized society. But on the other hand, it is possible that some of the stuff you have refused to drink was quite nasty. Altogether, I would say that the matter depends entirely upon what you consider really bad. It would probably be a lot easier for Aunt Bella to come to a decision if you would bring in some samples. I'll be expecting you.

—Aunt (Tried and True) Bella.

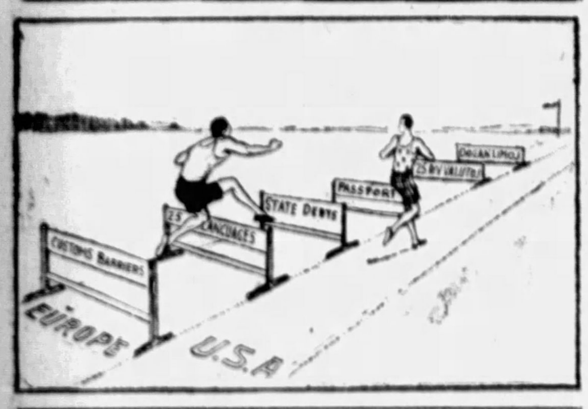
A Picture and a Lesson

This Should Make Americans Thankful



THIS PICTURE ILLUSTRATES THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THIS COUNTRY AND EUROPE.

There is in this very small picture, published by Temesvar and printed in the queer Esperanto language, a lesson for Americans and great cause for thankfulness.

On one side you see Europe engaged in a race with Uncle Sam.

The race is for the industrial supremacy of the world.

Uncle Sam, with his 48 states, or nations, all united, runs a smooth path.

Europe is divided into many countries, with customs barriers not only between the different nations but actually between the city and country regions within the same country. Many languages, overwhelming state debts, complicated passport regulations and other nuisances hamper business.

If the United States were established on a European basis you would have to get a passport to go from New York to New Jersey; another to go from New Jersey to Pennsylvania; another for every one of the 48 states.

If you went from New York to Chicago you would find the people speaking a language you did not understand. And the Chicago man going to Palm Beach, or to Seattle, or San Francisco, would have to take three separate languages with him.

Here we have real "free trade." Our 48 states trade freely among themselves. They all speak the same language. They have the same methods of doing business.

No wonder Briand, intelligent French statesman, seeks to establish a "United States of Europe."

But his is an uphill task. He will not live to see the thing accomplished, nor will his children, nor his great-great-grandchildren.

In Russia alone there are 40 different languages.

There are hatreds based on religion, on race prejudice.

There are hatreds of the vilest kinds, based on superstition and tradition.

This picture should fill with gratitude the heart of every American, helping him to realize what it is that gives us our prosperity, and that makes the development of our national life along lines of harmony and increasing friendliness so certain.

The Low Cost of Living

If Figures Don't Lie.

Back in 1913 your dollar would buy a dollar's worth of goods. All know what happened during and after the war. You had to pay nearly two dollars, at various times, for a dollar's worth, by the 1913 standard.

Your dollar will not buy a dollar's worth yet on that basis, but it is welcome news that it will buy a little more than it did as recently as the first of this year.

For a dollar's worth of goods, according to the United States Bureau of Labor, you now pay exactly $1.66 and 6-10, as compared with what you paid in 1913. Six months ago you paid $1.69 and 4-10. Thus you are 2 and 8-10 cents richer than you were on January 1, 1930.

If you have lost your job or had your pay cut, this may not interest you especially. However, it shows a tendency toward more normal prices that is encouraging, as far as it goes. Wages and living costs adjust themselves to each other, and economic laws work themselves out with a fine disregard for the pronouncements of Presidents and the predictions of business experts.

Prices have been up, and wages have been up. Prices are coming down, and wages are already down. You may have fewer dollars, but each will be more valuable.

It's six of one, half a dozen of the other, in the long run.

Good News of Good Times

The Keeley Institute Booms.

When prohibition was enacted, its sponsors said it would help business. An instance in proof of it, which seems to have escaped their attention, is the boom which has struck the Keeley Institute at Dwight, Illinois.

The institute's semi-annual report shows that more patients took the cure during the first six months of this year than at any corresponding period since 1907.

Four hundred and forty-three liquor addicts were treated, as compared with 383 in the first half of last year.

Business and professional men led the list, and 106 patients were women.

The institute also reports that its new building program is near completion and that there will soon be space for additional inmates.

2—Rapid Transit.
3—Repeal or modification of "blue law."
4—Establishment of Pittsburgh metropolitan district.

6—Town Hall, seating at least 15,000.

"Bugs" Baer

But the most important discovery of all was perpetrated by a free or equal citizen of New Jersey. At the time of the tasty occurrence he was driving a small open-face limousine.

Like all motorists, he was shooping peacefully along, avoiding the puddles and slapping the pedestrians.

And, like all good little motorists do, sooner or quicker, he came to a cross-roads where locomotives meet all challengers.

He stepped on the place where his brakes should be and stopped because he had run out of gasoline.

A healthy, robust freight train was dashing north at the rate of two crawls a toot.

Have you ever watched a freight train pass while you were in a hurry to go no place?

But there isn't much you can do about it except twiddle your thumbs and see which one gets manicured first.

Not this motorist. He was a gentleman of high bicycle days. He got a load of enforced waiting and then clambered out through his windshield.

Climbing right on the most prosperous section of the freight train he uncoupled two cars.

The engineer and three cars went sailing up the right-of-way as cheerful as a fireman breaking a window.

The engineer left over 200 freight gondolas to the south of him. But he didn't know anything about that because a good railroad man looks straight ahead except when he is flirting sideways.

The uncoupling operation left a big pathway across the grade. That's just what the motorist wanted. He got back into his motor car and skidded across the tracks.

He had solved the problem of crossing the tracks without the aid of a good lawyer.

It was a splendid idea if it worked. And it did. But we do not advise you to try it very often. Because he now needs the good lawyer. The police grabbed him by the sociable lapels and he will not have to wait until his Christmas stocking gets here to receive a nice present of 10 days in the jailhouse or its equivalent in certified labels.

CURIOSITIES OF NUMBERS

By Archibald Henderson

From the earliest times, man has concerned himself with numbers, and sought to discover singular properties belonging to them. Among the most peculiar and interesting numbers are those known as primes. These are numbers which are divisible only by themselves and one. Mathematicians have long sought to discover some formula which would give all primes; or at least give only primes.

The brilliant French mathematician, Pierre Fermat, who has been the cause of almost interminable calculations since his day, worked out a formula which he claimed would give only prime numbers. His formula gave, as the first four such numbers, 5, 17, 257 and 65,537. He took the trouble to check every one of these numbers; and they all proved to be primes. The next number, according to the formula, was the number 2 raised to the thirty-second power, plus one. Fermat was a bit doubtful as to whether this was a prime number or not. If not, then his rule broke down—in not always producing a prime number. The reader may amuse himself by adding one to the number 2 multiplied by itself 32 times; and then showing that the resulting number is not prime, since it is divisible by 741.

Another ingenious formula for producing only primes is n2-n plus 41. This looked good, and worked out correctly for every value of n from 1 to 40. But did it work out for high numbers? Let us try n equal to 41. The result is 1681, which is not a prime number, since both its factors are 41! The rule looked good, and was good, until 41 was reached. Then it broke with a terrific snap!

A beautiful theorem, which holds without exception, is known as the Wilson theorem. Let us remember that a factorial number, say fractional 4, is 4 times 3 times 2 times 1; and so for other numbers. The Wilson theorem says: Any number is a prime when the successor of that factorial number less one is divisible by the number. Consider 5 for example. The factorial of that number diminished by one is 24. Its successor, 25, is divisible by 5. Hence 5 is a prime number. Take another example. Consider the successor of factorial 10. It is 3,628,801. Since this is divisible by 10 plus 1, then 11 is a prime number.

The illustrations and examples given in this article are taken from a fascinating work, "Number, the Language of Science," by Tobias Dantzig. One more rule he gives for primes is that of Goldbach: Every even number is the sum of two primes. Try 10, for example. It is the sum of 5 and 5, or 3 and 7. Try to discover the two primes, or parts of primes, whose sum gives 100.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Up the long trail where the dust lies pollen bright, under skies blue as old Holland glaze, five friars are trudging today. Bare, hot hills heave to the right of them—golden as naked flesh. Peacock surf breaks to the left of them, black troughed, ivory veined, flinging its spangled veil along a silvery beach. And with them—through the glittering light—through the fragrant dark—walks a little gray ghost, unseen. The ghost of Father Junipero Serra, who took that trail 200 years ago.

"El Camino Real" they call it in California—that road the padres made from mission to mission along the coast. No automobiles, then. Not even a burro at first. Step by step, through crashing sun and slashing rain, through weariness and loneliness, through poverty and pain, Junipero Serra walked, taking Christ to the Indians. And now five friars, gray robed, black cowled, follow his path.

Not really friars, these five men. Actually they are a manufacturer, a Presbyterian clergyman, a publisher, a minister and a retired army officer. But, for the days which shall pass while they walk from San Diego to Seattle, they have put the friar's garb upon their bodies—and the friar's vows upon their souls. For these days—and it is a long march—they will go as Father Serra went, penniless, preaching, depending for their daily needs on those who wish to give. Even their names are left behind. They are known only as Brothers Paul, Peter, Silvester, Joseph and Lawrence.

Five men, deliberately stepping out of modern life, taking up the garb of poverty and devotion, going out to preach and learn. For they will learn more than they will preach, those five. They will learn humility—walking there, so small and weak, between the great hills and waters—lying out, so brief and insignificant beneath the everlasting, burning stars. They will learn simplicity, with the earth for a pillow and a handful of figs for a meal. They will learn brotherhood again—trudging along with hoboes and cowboys and fruit pickers, out of a job. And, as their bodies toughen and their minds empty themselves of city trash, they will, I suspect, learn about God. Learn about that brooding, unhurrying God who gets around to everything in His own good time.

Five men, turning their backs on the world, going out penniless to find God—does that seem a queer notion? It is—in this country. But it would be no novelty to peoples who are older in the ways of the soul. As far back as the mind can reach, wise men of the East have, at certain periods, left the world behind them and gone out with the begging bowl. Gone out to clean themselves of foolishness and fret—to learn kindliness and humility and, perhaps, find God somewhere between the stars and the sea.

Sometimes you've wished that you, too, could go out as they are going—haven't you? Drop everything—walk away—be by yourself for a while—then make a fresh start. But there was the office—or the babies—

Yes, I know. Not all of us can follow Father Serra's trail in the flesh. See those hills sprawl golden beside the peacock surf. Feel the silence fold us like the brooding of great wings. But each man can make El Camino Real for himself. If he wishes—a secret trail beside the busy highway of his life. Each man can, in his soul, put useless things away—be humble—learn friendliness—stop chattering—and walk with God.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

There was a cow-puncher out in Texas that come up to Dallas to see the town and do a little shopping. When he was on the streets one night he noticed that a lot of men had white shirts on. He went into a store the next day, and he says to the clerk:

"Can you sell me a shirt that's white, like some I seen on the street last night? I don't know exactly how to call 'em, beins I have always wore colored shirts, but these is white, and awful pretty, and I want one like them."

"Well," says the clerk, "now we have got a lot of styles of white shirts. What kind, I wonder, did you see? Now, how would one like this one I got on suit you?"

The clerk had his coat off, and he pointed to his own shirt and turned around a couple of times.

"No," says the cow-puncher, "I don't think so. While I'm at it I'll pay a little more and get a clean one, if you don't mind."

Vanity Fair

Vanity Fair,
Vanity Fair,
Past your bright gates
What fortune waits,
Laughter or longing, fulfillment, despair?

Brighter than dawn,
Luring men on;
Promising bliss,
Love or fame's kiss,
Veiled in the glamour no years have withdrawn!

Vanity Fair,
Vanity Fair,
All the world knows
Joy like a rose
Waits for the hand that can gather it there!

Vanity Fair,
Vanity Fair,
Gain or defeat,
Life still is sweet,
Touched by the glamour of Vanity Fair!

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

8. IS HUMAN REJUVENTION DESIRABLE?

Arising out of this discussion is the very interesting problem whether there would be any advantage at all, either for the individuals concerned or for the species, to prolong the lives of men and women of the current type very much beyond 80 years. Health, vigor and happiness up to 75 or 80 seem to be a possible thing now for many people with a good start.

At the end of that time it is open to question whether there is anything more for the contemporary old to do that could not be done better by younger people, or whether the pleasure and entertainment they will still draw from life will compensate them for the labor of continuing.

H. G. Wells.

Most old people become very philosophical about death; few regard the final cessation of experience with the terror it has for the young. They tire. They have seen the show.

Mechnikov, who paid some special attention to the subject, concluded that in the very old, those who were dying not of disease but of sheer old age, there existed a desire for death as natural and normal as the desire for sleep at the end of a long day.

We have already noted that the fully developed brain and nervous system have a fixed number of nerve-cells. We know no way of increasing them. As in its youth the organism learned, connections were established between these cells, paths of association were set up and the main substratum of the mental existence was established.

On this fresh associations and persuasions are being perpetually built, but there is no going back to childhood and youth to reconstruct those foundations. The brain has the framework of its time and circumstances set up for once and all.

As life goes on it becomes more and more difficult for the brain to accept new fundamental ideas. And not only ideas but feelings and affections become fixed. How much of an old brain must be occupied by tender thoughts and perhaps hostile thoughts, rivalries, considerations, loyalties, about the dead?

For the values of 10,000 things it goes back to the dear old home and to the beloved school that time has long since swept away. The brains of many ageing people must be like cemeteries at evening time. They are overcharged with past things, and no sort of hormone will ever alter that.

It is interesting and plausible to argue that the individual life of the larger animals, the soma, is a sacrifice of physical immortality in exchange for power and achievement. The individual has, so to speak, made a bargain.

For the individual comes out of the germ-plasm and does and lives and at length dies for the sake of life. It is a bit of the germ-plasm which has arisen and broken away, in order to see and feel life instead of just blindly and mechanically multiplying.

Like Faust it has sold its immortality in order to live more abundantly. A bacterium, as we have shown, is all germ-plasm, all reproductive material, and there is no soma to die. But its activities are very limited.

In a man what remains of the immortal germ-plasm is a mere scrap of material hidden in his body. It has been, so to speak, thrust out of the way, so that he can grow; so that he can use hands, feet, eyes and brain; so that he can run, swim, climb, fly and fight his obstinate battle against the universe. He sees, he hears, he thinks, he puts things on record, stores resources, marks dangers and prepares a path for his sons.

But he subordinates the germ-plasm only in order that he may serve it, willingly or not. He uses himself up, but gloriously. Until the dawn of greater capacity and the onset of greater tasks, his 80-year life seems to be enough for what he has to do.

Much more, and this brain, clogged with its own private memories and conclusions, would cumber the progressive and impatient germ-plasm. For the individual there is a time for work, there is a time for rest, there is a time to go.

Abroad With A New Yorker

By O. O. McIntyre

BERLIN.—We motored to the German capital from Potsdam through the Tiergarten, Berlin's Central Park and once a private deer preserve when the king business was on the up and up. Turning suddenly through Victory arch that swell strasse—Unter den Linden—burst into view. It is a dazzler.

Unter den Linden has a yellow sanded walk down its center and a smother of linden trees and a grass plot on each side, a jungle of verdure. One roadway is for up traffic and the other for down. The boulevard stretches from the Tiergarten to the Kaiser's palace and there is always the soft confusion of chirping birds.

At 6 p. m. I turned in and slept the clock around. Outside my window I was told was one of the periodical communistic demonstrations but it did not disturb. This morning, after breakfasting lightly on a bracket of sausages, we started in a taxi with the dog for the Tiergarten. He loves the woods, too.

Near the Adlon my wife spotted a familiar figure in the crowds and was soon yoo-hooing to Karl Kitchen, who also writes a New York column. He is here studying Germany's economic aspects—the cultured soanaso. We kept him from his morning shave for a swing around the park to exchange news from home.

Later he inveigled my wife into Otto Baarz's pilsener palace while I had to stand outside and hold the dog. Canines are not allowed in street cars, shops or stores, save in Munich. Munich held a dog parade to protest a recent law and it was so impressive the order was rescinded. A couple of "hochs" for Munich!

The sentimentality for the Kaiser, pronounced in Potsdam, vanishes here. Berliners enjoy the new freedom. Prussian military hot-heads no longer push the humble off sidewalks. Even the most hopeful monarchists do not look for a change for at least 20 years—if then.

The Kaiser's private road—Herrstrasse—from Berlin to Potsdam, is a public highway. Once only the war lord could pass through the middle arch to Tiergarten. It, too, is open to all. Verbotten-ism and other militaristic nonsense is just a memory. Berlin seems the most democratic city in Europe.

Next to the English, the Germans are more like Americans than any other peoples in the old world. You have no feeling you are another pigeon to be plucked—the feeling in France. The "hotel service charge" here means nothing. The "yah, yah" is not so exquisitely effusive as the "oui, oui!" but it has more sincerity. English and Spanish are taught in all schools.

Blood ties linking Germany and America are pronounced. The comely fraulein, engaged for our stay, has a brother in St. Louis. A waiter has relatives in San Antonio, the chambermaid's sister is a Hollywood seamstress. And thus it thuses.

* * *

My single complaint against Germany is against their zeppelins. Not the aircraft, of course, but the local notion of a bed cover. The zeppelin is an enormous envelope of linen filled with feathers and not tucked in the sides. I wrestled with one all night, ran up a temperature, kicked it off, had a chill, pinned it to my pajamas, said bad words and finally covered myself with a Turkish towel, exhausted.

* * *

I tossed a crumpled cable envelope out a taxi today. A police whistle blew and a cop came trotting up. Only because I was a stranger was a summons not served. Where I come from you can throw a mattress out the window and no one minds.

At dinner tonight, for a change, ha, ha, I wolfed a string of Munich sausages. They are almost snow white and a dish, boys, a dish! But the gentleman, rubicund in face and round in body, smoking a native cigar, nearly spoiled things for me. German cigars should be smoked only on the edge of town.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Don't get to feeling above your job.

If your ability and experience entitled you to a better position it is natural for persons to ask the question "what is wrong with you that you don't earn your living according to your knowledge?"

Circumstances may not be favorable to your getting just what you want.

It is foolish to refuse to work if you can't have just what you desire.

And it is worse to need the money and so take up with what you can get while at the same time you think it is beneath you.

Whatever you undertake has the dignity you give it.

You cannot do good work when you are allowing yourself to rebel against conditions.

To love your job while you are doing it does not mean that you are unambitious, but signifies that you are giving all that you are paid to do.

The one who pays you or your customers deserve the best physical and mental effort of which you are capable.

So to get the idea that you are a little too good for your work is an injustice to those who must depend upon your service.

As a matter of fact are you not deceiving yourself when you imagine your ability entitles you to a higher place and more consideration?
